THE RIGHT TO BEAR COAT-ARMOR IN AMERICA

WILLIAM DELANO PURSIVANT-OF-ARMS

When the English began the settlement of America, there were two classes of people in England, from one of which came the Puritans; from the other the Cavaliers. The first came from the north of England; the latter formed the Virginia aristocracy. In general the settlers were gentlemen; both classes included descendants of the best families of their respective countries—men of high educational attainments representing the various learned professions. Some were graduates of Cambridge or Oxford; others were younger sons seeking a new home, either as bachelors or as single men. Nearly all the early settlers were not only entitled to bear coat-armor, but were punctilious in its use. These are the families represented in the early history of heraldry in America.

The position assumed by this select few has stimulated research in genealogy and heraldry—the same right being continually established by other American families. Intercourse was, as we all know, maintained with the old home and old friends, as well as the slow means of communication would permit.

What is said in this regard to New England may be applied to the plantations of Rhode Island, Virginia, the city of New Amsterdam and its great outlying estates, ruled over by the Patroons, the Georgia and Carolina grants, and the Louisiana settlements, with the aristocratic French emigrées. Out from this varied lot of European names and families came the American nation.

One finds that the settlers bore the coat-armor pertaining to their families. Not one, probably, of all these early immigrants had the slightest intention or desire to alienate the new lands from the protection of the crown. They were loyal each to his fatherland—over a century must pass before the break would begin. Why should they? Their old homes held many and dear relatives. Alone in a wild land their thoughts would naturally dwell on old ways and home customs, many of which they reestablished in the new land. That the use of coat-armor was one of these important old-home customs becomes apparent to all who take the trouble to study the every-day history of Colonial times. There was also constant influx of Europeans into the plantations and colonies, bringing the latest news and fashions, keeping alive the interest in European life and customs. And all this helped to continue the use of official and family coat-armor.

The French Huguenots added their ancestral armes to the growing roll of American heraldry. Men who were otherwise quick to discard foolish and useless customs, respected and continued with their surnames the use of seals and armes. We accepted the common law of England through ancestors who engrafted heraldry upon this country. That it may with honor be extensively developed, there should be little doubt from the present survey of the subject.

Puritan and Cavalier both respected and looked to their fatherland. Differing in religion, they both accepted, without question, the custom long established by usage of coat-armor, as seen in their seals, bookplates, stained-glass windows and tombstones. To them a coat-of-arms was the one mark of esteem which all in a family might use, showing thereby that inseparable bond of kinship happily being revived to-day. They were animated by a pardonable pride to possess one thing, by right of lineal descent, which could not be taken away, stolen, or used by another. In a kingdom one may be dispossessed of coat-armor by royal order, but Americans are more fortunate, for no power can deprive them of the family name and its coat-of-arms.

The fact is indisputable that the different families retained their surnames as used by them before the establishment of the Republic. No thought was ever entertained of doing otherwise, and coat-armor, including the crest, is the direct personal attachment of a name.

As descendants of the European houses who used coat-of-arms, we find the settlers of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, called Puritans, with which are included many Huguenot families coming from Leyden and other ports of Holland. Then the Dutch of New Amsterdam, now known as the Knickerbocker families. All through the south, as in Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia, are found the Cavalier descendants. This list comprises the families who are known to have borne armes, not only before the Revolution, but after the Republic was established, and all of their descendants to-day who possess or are aware of this inherited right still use seals and armes upon family plate, carriages, etc. That dishonest as well as ignorant people use coat-armor belonging to others, or false armes, does not in the least affect those who bear armes by right of lineal descent which can be established beyond dispute. Unfortunately there are people who assume a right to be theirs by right of desire. The law discourages this kind of acquiring personal property, and as heraldic achievements are strictly incorporeal hereditaments, the law should protect their rightful owners.

It must not be thought that only the families mentioned have American coat-armor. On the contrary, many have found them in later times through pedigree research and genealogical records, and these are American armes just as much as the achievements brought over by the early settlers.

Some will doubtless ask how Americans can use that which belongs to a kingdom and connected with titled rank. In answer, first look at the Republic of Switzerland, which has had a regular established heraldry for centuries, its families being proud of their ancient descent, which coat-armor often denotes as well as proves to those who understand it.

Up to 1775 the United States was under the crown, having royal governors for each colony. Thus, all official business, deeds, records and papers requiring seals were impressed with the governor's coat-of-arms, and in private matters with the armes of those interested.

Deeds to estates, personal property, etc., were in all cases, with a few Tory exceptions, allowed to hold as legal. Coat-armor, being personal property, was naturally included in this acceptance of things, once connected with a kingdom. We have the proof of this in the continued use of armes by the founders of the Republic, as Washington, Adams, Clinton, Franklin, and Jay.

But most conclusive of all the mass of proof of the American right to use coat-armor is set forth in these words of Washington:

“It is far from my design to intimate any opinion that heraldry, Coat-armor, etc., might not be rendered conducive to public and private use with us, or that they can have any tendency unfriendly to the purest spirit of Republicanism. On the contrary, a different conclusion is deducible from the practice of Congress and the States, all of which have established some kind of Armorial Devices to authenticate their official instruments.”—From page 22 J. F. Schroeder, D.D., “Maxims of Washington, Political, Social, Moral and Religious.”

Heraldry, though applied to coat-armor, is in truth a term for the work of the herald, and is much more than blazoning and marshalling armes. The coat-of-arms is literally a dignified trade mark, in the genealogical sense, or badge of the name and family to which it pretends. It is useful for the identification of persons and property, and is more to be relied on in research than the family names, which, by reason of variations in spelling in old records, etc., are difficult to follow, while the accuracy of a coat-of-arms can always be relied on. It shows connection, descent and important marriages—being a guide to historians, genealogists and pedigree compilers. It began seven hundred years ago as an aid to the identification of persons, and to-day it exists exactly in the same sense. The use of heraldic bearings is not indicative of rank or title. It is, and always has been, the distinction of a house, whether commoners, gentles or nobles. In all countries is this true to-day, and in them all men, if gentlemen—as we in America understand the term—are entitled to this name distinon, for legal as well as social purposes. Equally true is this of the helmet, crest, mantle or flourish and motto. Supporters, particularly in England, are the part of the coat-of-arms whole, which belongs to those ennobled as a notice to that effect. But in this country there is no reason why they should not be used when inherited. In this country we preach that all men are equal, and long before that doctrine was accepted politically, coat-armor made all men above servants equal. There is absolutely no class or distinction in heraldic bearings, all coat-armor is complete, and finished, and equal, one shield to another, the arms of a king are no more, no less, and no better than those of the poorest commoner of the kingdom. Men have made a distinction as royal, noble, and commoner, but it is a purely personal attribute having no connection or relation with the usage of coat-armor. Indeed, many English and Continental families are far older and of a purer blood than most of the ennobled and royal houses of Europe to-day. In fact, abroad, as here at home, the true nobility of a country is the old families who seek no tinsel distinctions, but are content to be the backbone of the country. And these are the folk who bear coat-armor. In the English roll of arms to-day, there are some sixty-six thousand blazonings. Of these, less than three thousand are in the peerage and baronetage, the others are the gentry or people of England.

In Europe the roll contains over one hundred thousand names, of which not over ten thousand are ennobled with titles. The French considered a gentleman as being noble—indicated by “de”—and all were equal as such—also true of their coat-armor. Their descendants here to-day have the same right as those of English descent. So it is true of the Dutch, German and other settlers from the continent.

Again, we find coat-armor in the earliest times was closely connected with the bearing of surnames, the one begetting the other. These being called armes parlantes, canting arms, or arms which denote through the charge the surname: as castle & lion for Castile and Leon—stand and dish for Standish—sharp fusils for Montacute, Corbeau for Corbet, Herons for Heron, falcon for Falconer, swineherd for Swinbourne, penfeathers for Coupenne, hindelles for Arundell, hammers for Hamerton, cottonhanks for Cotton, oxen for Oxenden, column for Colonna, broken bread for Frangipani, bear for Ursini, suns for Pierson, apples for Appleton, rose for Roosevelt, fox heads for Foxcroft, cranes for Cranstovn, three hands conjoined for Tremain. Thus is shown the close connection between heraldry and the surname. The latter began with designating the place of residence, abode, occupation and personal attributes.

Not until after the XIII century were surnames established, and almost, if not at the same time, heraldry became a regulated usage. So from the first, arms and surnames in Europe have been synonymous for centuries. A man without armor, was one ignobilis or non noble—that is, not bearing coat-armor—and it was unnecessary for him to have a surname, as he was either a vassal, servitor, retainer or peasant. When he had gained or assumed a surname then the possession of coat-armor soon followed. As to the right of inheriting a name that is so established as to be understood and never disputed. A grant of coat-armor indicates an attachment to name, and implies that it is a hereditament—never going with a title or estate, but strictly and solely with the name to the immediate heir. As we accepted the right of inheriting family names, and through usage the right to bear arms, jointly, naturally it follows that the right still exists, only ending when all branches of the house are extinct. In fact, the right cannot be vacated by disuse on the part of a family in the line of descent, as is often the case, and any generation after, first establishing the right by connecting the lineage thus broken, can claim and bear the coat-of-arms.

Another positive proof of the American use of arms is the Gore Roll, a collection of ninety-nine coat-armors, painted by hand and once the property of Gore, a Boston carriage-maker, dating from 1701 to 1724.

We now come to the official seals and coats-of-arms of the United States and the several States. The following will show most effectively that coat-armor has been and still is officially used and, consequently, recognized by the National and State Governments.

The Department of State published, in 1892, an account of the formation and adoption of the Great Seal of the United States. In 1776 Dr. Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson were a committee to adopt a form for an official seal. The one they devised was finally refused—quarterly of six, one each for England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Germany and Holland. After passing through several stages of modification the present form was adopted in 1885. The President has a semi-official seal. The State Departments, the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives, and the Department of Justice also have their proper official arms. Each State, on being admitted to the Union, adopted an official seal and coat-of-arms.

The arms of the thirteen original States underwent various changes, some coming from the royal or colonial governors' coat-armor and seals. William Penn's arms were on the early seals of Pennsylvania and Delaware. Lord Baltimore's arms were also used for the same purpose in Maryland. The royal seal of England was used for Massachusetts until 1775. New Jersey used, in 1664, the seal of Berkeley and Carteret. The history of these seals is an interesting proof of the official recognition of the growth of American coat-armor.

The ecclesiastical and corporation seals form another distinct proof, sanctioned by use, of the right to bear coat-armor in this country. First is the great seal of the House of Bishops, the members having diocesan seals for official use, as the Bishops of California, Minnesota, New Jersey, Maryland, and Bishop Coxe of New York. Bishop Potter of this city impales his family arms with those of the State—dexter. The city of Philadelphia has an the official seal or coat-of-arms, and also Harvard College and the theocracy of Colonial Wars, the above being examples of a few out of the long list of corporations using such to-day. All individuals may use their own proper and legal seals, either representing their family arms or some selected device. Book-plates have been and are being used more than ever for the display of heraldic designs, utilizing the family coat-armor.

No surer or more convincing proof can be offered as evidence of a custom than habitual usage.

In closing, I can do no better than add that which Palliot, the great French authority of the seventeenth century, names armory, "La Vraye Et Parfaite Science Des Armoiries." The true and perfect—true because it cannot be falsely represented, and perfect because it indicates name and descent at a glance.

INTRODUCTION & GENERAL NOTE

The path back to the past knows but one true division line marked off at regular intervals by nature and that is the "generation." In each is found the real history of the civilised world. Could the details of every family since its beginning and adoption by general use of the surname, have been preserved in writing we would have a perfect history of every state, city, and town in Europe and America. This will be found true in time to come regarding thousands of genealogies already written. The designating individuals with two or more christian or given names is now absolutely necessary to distinguish persons of the same family. Before 1800 it was rare that a person had more than one given name joining his surname. In time to come it will be necessary to have from five to six or even more personal names to identify the various members using a common surname.

To those who have given this subject thought the invention of the surname is a wonderful thing. Usage has developed a certain sound inflected properly which indicates to the listener the name of a family, and denotes that such who use it belong to that particular house or family, in most cases derived from a common progenitor. But even before this a system of indicating the father of each person—above the peasant or serf—was in use. It came down from the dawn of known history, the Hebrew "ben" always connecting father and son—the Roman "filius"—the Welsh "ap," the Gaelic "mac" and "o'," the Norman "fitz."

Between these two usages heraldry began and many surnames sprang from the heraldic device or charge. It is undoubtedly here that the idea of a generic or birth-right surname began, and there is little doubt of armorial bearings being the real source of many modern surnames.

An idea of the real significance of ancestral progenitors may be gained by reading the following:

As we go back there are 2 parents, then 4 grandparents, the 8, and so on. As each generation is added, the number of grandparents increase. Thus: In the 11th gen. there are 1,024 distinct surnames, the 15th gen. has increased to 16,384 ancestors. There are many families who trace back this distance with ease and certainty in the paternal surname, but is there one among them who can give even half out of the above number of ancestral surnames.

the 20th gen.—it is true—you number 524,288 progenitors, all the same period or generation and this is only to about 1200

There are families who trace back with perfect truth to the 900. Now the 25th gen. gives 16,777,216 fathers and mothers the proper number of greats prefixed, and now we are only the Norman Conquest 1066. Here is the 30th gen. (being it 900 A.D.) in round numbers just 512 millions or one-third population of the world to-day. The 50th gen. would make a good sized family genealogy by itself—being loosely stated at "500 trillions"—a valuable book. Now we approach the beginning of the Christian Era—could any person trace back to 1 or about the 60th gen. and give the names of all his progenitors, would have in his list 530,000,000,000,000,000, or 530 thousand trillions. At that time either the world must have been overpopulated or else one couple was progenitor to a good many brothers and sisters, making the civilized world afterward rather closely connected. In fact the figures are beyond comprehension. It shows that thousands of people living to-day have had the same ancestor not many generations back. Those who boast of royal descent forget that they are merely one of perhaps an hundred thousand others counting that royal personage in a roundabout way as one of their many progenitors.

Literally speaking or rather telling the truth there is no such distinction as royalty—those who at different periods achieved royal positions were themselves, or descendants of, seigneurs—barons of the demesne—chiefs, etc. Consequently by counting them all, all kings are reduced to not only collateral relatives but to younger sons of your lineal progenitor. Surnames and coats-arms decrease in number as the 20th gen. is approached, those who wish to work out all their paternal and maternal ancestors must stop assigning to them arms and surnames after the 30th gen. Progenitors might then be known by numbers. The whole number of progenitors including your father and mother, to the 10th gen., adds up 1,022; most every one has that number it is supposed. The 20th gen. makes your total 1,048,574. As many as yet, but the 25th gives some 33 millions and there we must better stop as the population of the world is inadequate to furnish sufficient ancestors, not to mention cousins.

When we consider that all those who have gone before were absolutely required, to give us being and a country to live in it is a little to do in return to put together a list of their names and surnames. Can we offer our coming generations better food for thought, reflection and serious ambition than this, to emulate their fathers in the best they did? All truly great men have loved and respected the memory of their forefathers. It is only the dull narrow minded selfish being who fails to comprehend the value of his inheritance and its relation to our inherited qualities.

The study of heraldry develops an entirely new way of seeing things as it is. We no longer imagine that class or clique distinctions are a separate caste each above the other, graded in these distinctions by money power. On the contrary there are only two classes in life, not theory but practice. The first is made up of all the armorial families of the world and include the imperial, royal, princely, ducal, all the titled nobles, the earldoms, countships, baronies, lordships, seigneuries, knights and gentle houses, they are all equal armorially to one another and inherit coat-armor equally—it is in reality an enormous brotherhood of Heraldic houses. The second is of all who are not—but in our times as well as the past one may easily rise to the social first class, it being under certain conditions free to enter.

The descendants of the 2d class whose forefathers were peasants, tradesmen, bourgeois, clerks, artisans, mechanics, serfs, retainers, villains, tenants, soldiers, bastards and waifs, can and have risen to the first class and form to-day a large part of the boasted forefathers of many a haughty line. And now I think I have reached the true point of genealogies, a beginning, and will show that in the case of the most ancient lines they and theirs undoubtedly began in tribes, clans, and septs, their parentage lost and life a commune. We all can trace, when possible, back to but a dim and uncertain light. Intensely interesting to those who see within the meaning of all things and value at its true politic worth the glitter of title and power of precedence.

An attempt has been made to give some data about each allied family—the whole line or the earliest ancestor in America & their origin in Europe. The coat-armors when indicated as of that family are inherited. When given as “of Eng.” or some place on the Continent—means nothing is known about the right; armes are thus given to indicate the standing of the family in Europe. Only a search can prove in this case the connection. When uncommon surnames appear the armes are given to locate the family and in such case the origin is almost always one. It is presumed until shown otherwise that each family acquired their surname by birth and not by assumption or adoption. Mistakes will be corrected whenever those who know have the kindness to inform the authors.

Such surnames as appear without notes, genealogies, or reference to Savage's Gen. Dict. are hopeless and cannot be found in the armorial rolls of Europe.

When uncommon fornames are prevalent in a line or its branches: or one or two names run in a line continually, it often indicates the cadette armes to be used in America.

All coat-armor is inherited with the surname, from the founder if he bore such. Grants after 1500 A.D. may belong entirely to one line of a family tho' they are all from one progenitor. Armes cannot be used then except by descendants of the one line.

Confirmation of old grants after 1800 A.D. even do not prevent inheritance of the old coat. Also be sure that the Conf. is no new grant so disguised as to give a pretence of an ancient armor.

Coat-armors are not a mark of rank or distinction any more than the surname is. All gentles & nobles must bear such. If the Amer. fam. has always been of gentle rank then the armes must exist as a birth-right.

LANNOY

The beginning is naturally with the ancient town of Lannoy c which there is little enough written. In an ancient map of Flan-dria inscribed "Carolus Caluus Imp.—Baldvino Ferrero et Iudi-thae . . . etc" at the time of their reigns Charles the Bal-of France and his son-in-law Baldwin Bras-de-fer 1st comte c Flanders, thus making the date about 863—is found a few mile from Isla, now Lille, a town called Alnetum later known a L'Annois and Lannoy. That the town is even older is possibl for this country was under the rule of the Franks in the fit century A.D. the monarchy having been established by Clovis 481
The meaning of the name is not known. In ancient chartes it i variously spelled L'Annois L'Annoe L'Aulnais L'Aulroy. I is more often called Alnetum. The illustrious family whic bear this name is called in old latin works "Alnetanam familiam.
See Olivarius Vredius 3 vols. "Historiae et Genealogica Com-

Lannoy is given as the title of a comté (countship) in Flandres. It is some six miles from Lille to the east. Tourcoing lies above to the east, while to the South East is Tournay. Baedekers Guide-Book describes it as an ancient decayed town once prominent in the Middle ages, and now reached by a drive from the nearest railway station at Roubaix, to the north. Flandres has formed a part of France since 1667, Lannoy now being in the "department de la Nord, France."

Lannoy to-day is a small manufacturing town, 7 miles E.N.E. of Lille. The population is 1904. [Lippincotts Gazetter of the World, for 1895.]

The first lord of Lannoy mentioned is Hugues de Lannoy spoken of as a knight at the Tournoi d'Anchin in 1096. A Simon de Alneto also appears in the list. A charte des Chanoines [Cannons] de St. Pierre à Lille mentions Gilbert de Lannoy 1171 A.D. Again we find Hugues de Lannoy in the charte de l'Abbaye de St. Aubert de l'année 1186 A.D.

Lannoy or Lannois Abbaye de France in Beauvoisis diocese de Beauvais Ordre de Cisteaux founded in 1137 by Jean seigneur de Rocherolles whose tomb is in the church. This seems to be but an outline of the lords of Lannoy before 1310 and all that can be found to date, though it is possible that this "Manuscript des de Lannoy commencing in 1096 and terminating in 1760" contains a more detailed account from 1096 to 1312. With the last seigneur de Lannoy and de Lys of the old house, is taken up that Franchimont to whom Mahut or Mahienne the heiress of Lannoy and Lys was married in 1312 or [1310].

It is a curious fact that as heiress of the seigneuries de Lannoy and Lys she did not carry the armes to join or impale with her husband, Jean de Franchimont, who kept his armes and beneathed them with the surname of Lannoy to his descendants. Les plus anciennes armoiries Françaises," 1127-1300 par de Lesdain Archives Héraldiques Suisses No. 2, 1897, Neuchatel Switzerland.

Monsieur:—En réponse à votre honorée, je m'empresse de vous informer que, relativement à la genealogie des anciens seigneurs de Lannoy, la question est assez simple, mais il faut pour cela faire beaucoup de recherches et conséquemment employer du monde.

Les archives de Lannoy sont très compliquées et ne pourrais vous satisfaire du jour au lendemain.

Je sais que la ville de Lannoy a en l'honneur de recevoir il y a deux ans, la visite d'un jeune comte de Lannoy (Received a visit 2 years ago fr. a young Comte de Lannoy), il faut aussi faire des recherches pour savoir où il existe.

Tout cela évidemment nécessite des dépenses, qu'il est difficile de vous dire dès maintenant.

Pour payer ce travail et ces recherches qui nécessite ro être des déplacements, veuillez avoir l'obligeame de m'envoyez francs d'acompte.

Si la dépense doit être plus forte, je vous en préviendrai y envoyant les renseignements que vous jugerez devoir me de et que vous voudrez bien spécifier dans votre réponse.

A partir de ce jour, je commence à faire vérifier les afin de gagner du temps.

Veuillez agréer, Monsieur, l'assurance de ma considération distinguée

Le Maire

OSCAR BETREMU

N. B.—Vous pouvez continuer à écrire en anglais et si il plaisait mieux, je puis vous répondre en anglais.

FRANCHIMONT

The seigneurie de Franchimont was situated in Normandy, west of Flanders. Normandie was a duchy first under Hrolf the Viking in 911 A.D. The exact location of Franchimont is not apparently known, it was raised into an estate or manor by:

1-A ARNULPHE de FRANCHIMONT [or Arnulf] seigneur of the castle and domain of Franchimont in Normandie 1139 A.D. "Created a comte by the Emp. Conrad," "m. a dau. of the seigneur d'Ivoy." [Genealogical Copie de la famille de Lannoy from 1139 to 1866.] His son was:

2-A CONRAD de FRANCHIMONT [1175 ?] seigneur de Franchimont. Became GOVERNOR of the pays du LIEGE & Gov. of Bouillion (district of Liège) under Henry of Limburg, Bishop of Liège. Went to Italy with him and was charged by the Emperor (Frederick Barbarossa 1152-90 or Henry VI) to guard the "Relics of the Three Kings" when the precious depot was sent to Cologne. "He m. 1166 Ermingarde Walcourt or Wallecourt of Namur." His son was:

3-A HELLIN de FRANCHIMONT [1225] comte and marquis de Franchimont. He married: Agnes the daughter of Othon 1st or Otho duc de Baviere (duke of Bavaria) & comte Palatine [she founded the monastery or convent of Saint Agnès]. See the Royal Chart of Lannoy and charts "A" "C" & "D." they had Hellin II. Agnes m. Hellin I (abt. 1245) ? born after 1229 dau. of Othon duc de Baviaria m. Agnes (about 1225 ? or later) dau. of Henry VI m. Agnes in 1193 A.D. Othon: was the son of Louys I, made duke of Bavaria in 1215 by the Emp. Fred. II—He married: Agnes dau. of Henry VI, duc de Saxe & de Baviaria & his wife Agnes comtesse palatine du Rhin [dau. of Conrad comte palatine of the Rhine & duke of Swabia 1156 of the Hohenstaufen line]—see Royal chart—Hohenstaufen Armes: Arg. sometimes or, 3 lions léopardés gu. in pale Hen. VI was the son of Hen. V "the Lion" & Matilda of England see charts. Armes of Othon 1st duke of Bavaria: Bore: Losangé en bande, d'azur & d'argent of 21 pieces. Armes of duchy of Saxony Burelé of sable & or, 10 pieces: a crancelin (wreath or crown) sinople posed in bande, over all. Note fr. Ency. Brit. Vol XVIII p. 166. In 1156 the Palatinate (Pfalz) was granted by the Emperor Frederick I to his step-brother duke Conrad de Swabia who was succeeded by his son-in-law Henry duc de Brunswick (father of Agnes) (son of Henry the lion): In 1215 A.D. Frederick II the Emperor punished Henry for opposing him, by granting the Palatinate & duchy to Louis or Louys I duc de Baviaria whose son (Otho) Agnes m. Otho II (or I of this line). In 1256 their heirs were Louis II & Henry.

Anno 1240 Otho, Dux Bavariae, mittens Ludovicum filium suum, cum exercitu; ad terram illam, sibi civitates Linz & Anasum, cum magna parte illius provinciae subjugavit."

4-A HELLIN II de FRANCHIMONT [1275] Marquis de Franchimont. He married 1225 ? Agnis daughter of Guilbert Gysbert or Gilbert comte de Duras who married: Gertrude de Namur they had 2 sons 1st Balderic 2d Jean. Armes of Duras: Sable, semé (powdered) of fleur-de-lis or. The ancient armes of France same with the field azure instead of sable 1st used by Louis VIII 1223-6. The family of Duras is of the pays de Liège and on the evidence of the armes may have been connected with the royal house of France. The armes certainly originated about the same time. See Royal chart. Of Namur: The ancient comtes de Namur comtes de la Roche & de Durbuy, comtes de Luxembourg from 1136-96 Berenger comte de Namur lived 908 A.D. later came Henry comte de Namur had Godfrey de Namur had Alix de Namur m. 1171 abt. Baudouin IV comte de Haynault. Robert de Namur (a bend wavy) about 1300. Armes: Or, a lion sable, armed, tongue, and crown gules, some bore a cotice diff. gules brochant sur le tout (over all). Crest: a pair of wings sable.

The comtes de Namur held the office of "Advocati" of the Abbey Andenne but misusing their power the Emperor H. R. E. Henry the III, 1046, obliged Albert comte de Namur, to restore and hold only as a fief of the Empire [see Eccles. Her. Woodward 1894]. Albert comte de Namur was living 1000 A.D. Philippe marquis de Namur 1206 William de Flandre comte de Namur 1350. Whether Gertrude was of the old house or the later Haynau't-Flanders house of Namur is unknown but from the date she is probably of the last.

[Eldest son and heir to Hellin II]

BALDERIC de FRANCHIMONT 3d marquis de Franchimont (1300) Chevalier (Knight) (Ritter) Joined Henry de Gueldres Prince-Bishop of Liège. He married: Ida de Rochefort, Rochefort d'Ailly—Auvergne & Forez in France. Armes: Gules, a bande ondée (wavy) argent, accompanied with 6 merlettes argent posed in orle—Tenants: 2 angels, dalmatics azure, they had a daughter & heiress of the blood

WALBURGE de FRANCHIMONT (Wilburge) she married: Gisbert (Gysbert) comte de Tourinnes. The armes of Tourinnes not found. They probably bore the armes of Franchimont. They had one son THEOBALD marquis de Franchimont & comte de Tourinnes—He became a chanoine [cannon] of Saint Lambert at Liège. He bequeathed at his death to this chapter the marquisate de Franchimont and all its dependencies. (1451.) Thus ended the senior line or house of Franchimont. Armes of Franchimont: Arg: 3 lions sinople armed & tongued gu. & crowned or. [see fig. 3]. This line became one in the person of Jean II seigneur de Lannoy Governor of Holland & 4th Chancellor of the Golden Fleece—1451—Who thereupon bore Franchimont in full [see Siebmacher Hohe Adel & Alm. de Gotha—Rheina-Wolbeck]. He became at this time (1451) the head of both Lannoy and Franchimont.

THE FRANCHIMONT & LANNOY COAT-ARMOR

When the Franchimont armes were first in use we cannot tell but like all the most ancient bearings they were undoubtedly among the first to be assumed and inherited by son and grandson. From the general data it would seem that the coat-armor originated with Conrad de Franchimont who was governor of the region of Liège [see pedigree], date about or just before 1200 A.D., his son Hellin became the marquis de Franchimont and bore supposedly "Argent, 3 lions rampant sinople—vert", so did Hellin II and his eldest son Balderic his grandson Théobald the last marquis de Franchimont, who bequeathed to the chapter at Liège the marquisate, apparently about 1451. The See of Liège was founded 130 A.D. and transferred to Liège 709. It was a principality of the Holy Roman Empire, the Prince-bishop belonging to the circle of Westphalia, he bore among other titles that of marquis de Franchimont, clearly that bequeathed about 1451. Franchimont and the other titles were taken from the bishop and given by the king of France to the house of la Tour d'Auvergne. A Treatise On Ecclesiastical Heraldry by John Woodward LL.D. 1894 Scotland.

The author further says that "the marquisate of Franchimont appears to have been in possession of the See in the eleventh century when the bishop vindicated his right to it against the claim of the duke of Lorraine." This is hardly possible unless the marquisate was given by Henry of Limburg to the Franchimonts for they had already possessed since 1139 the seigneurie de Franchimont in Normandie. The coat-armor is 3d in the quartered coat of the Prince-bishops of Liège [Lüttich] "Argent, three lions rampant vert (armed gules) MARQUISATE OF FRANCHIMONT"—Balderic and Jean de Franchimont inherited the armes of their father Hellin II—which are—Argent, trois lions rampant de sinople armé et lampassé de gueules, couronne d'or—2 & 1—Being a silver shield with 3 green lions with gold crowns, claws & tongues red. Balderic carried the full coat of Franchimont which was finally incorporated by the bishops of Liège. Jean, the second son, differenced or used a brisure the proof of which is shown later on. This new Franchimont coat-armor was—Argent, 3 lions sinople crowned or, with a BORDURE engrêlee gules and this was, with the various brisures, used by his descendants. One authority states that Jean preserved the armes of Franchimont—arg. 3 lions des sinople. Thus his descendants inherited the FRANCHIMONT coat-armor and assumed the heiress surname of LANNOY as their own. [See figures 2, 6 & 9.] [There was a knight called Jean d'Allery 1310 of Picardy, and much later this house adopted the surname de Lannoy with the armes [Argent, 3 lions sinople armé & lamp. de gules, couronne d'or] Rietstap vol. I. 1895—it is also claimed that 2 authentic chartes in Picardie 25 & 26, give d'Allery. It is very clearly an error and refers not to our Lannoy in Flandres but to LANNOY d'AMERAUCOURT in Picardie 1300, and which is probably from Lannoy ancient. The connection by a marriage d'Allery with Lannoy is in some obscure way brought in at this date—there can be no other clear reason for their using the Franchimont coat-armor and furthermore there is no authority for that usage. When and by what right did Allery use the Franchimont armes?]

[2d son of Hellin II]

5-A JEAN de FRANCHIMONT. About the year 1300 A.D. Jean passed into Flanders with a suite of Franchimontois retainers and followers in number [3000] three thousand, whom he brought to the assistance of Gui de Dampiere comte de Flanders [1225-1305 did homage to St. Louis 1251 & 1294 his dau. m. Edward pr. of Eng.] See Vredius. The fame and power of this seigneur de Franchimont must have been indeed great to lead and control as his own such a large body of followers. He married Mahienne, Mayenne or Mahaud de Lannoy daughter and sole heiress of the last seigneur de Lannoy and de Lys, from whom her husband assumed the seigneurie de Lannoy and their issue bore the surname of Lannoy ever aiter. The date of this marriage is generally given as 1312, but this would make their eldest son who married in 1329 only sixteen at that date, for this and other reasons the date more likely is 1310. Jean married a second wife; Isabeau de Clery, but had by her no children. The descendants of JEAN & MAHIENNE de FRANCHIMONT seigneur & dame de LANNOY & de LYS, are as follows: [they had but one child] [also a son?] Wallerand de Lannoy (doubtful) seigneur de Lannoy & de Lys married Isobel de Clary—[Possibly meant for 2d wife of Jean]. No further account found. From the Annuaire de la Noblesse. The son and heir was—

6-A HUGUES de LANNOY [sometimes Hue or Hues]. He was born about 1311 and died in June 1349. Succeeded as seigneur de LANNOY & de LYS. Married in 1329 Marguerite dame de Mingoval daughter of Gilles de Maingoval or Mingoval a Peer of the chateau de Béthune. She died aged 70 years and was buried beside her husband in the entry to the choir of the church at Lys. Upon her tomb is the Maingoval coat-armor, color unknown, being a shield or écusson charged with a bande or bend. Hue de Lannoy chevalier gave a quittance the 23d of May 1338 to Nicolas le Gros, lieutenant of the King's war Treasury. To which is affixed his official seal in red wax, a shield bearing three lions within a bordure engrêlée—engrailed—[Paris cabinet of M. Clairambault]—see Fig. 6. Hue was a seigneur from his father Jean and inherited his coat-armor differenced with a bordure. Proving that Jean (5-A) bore as a younger son the bordure for a brisure or difference. [This being a charge used to denote younger branches of families.] As a brisure the bordure was used from 1251-75 in the proportion shown by 4, but from 1301 to 1325 it had increased to 18. "Archives Héraldique Suisses Oct. No. 10. 1896." They had the following sons Founder progenitors of the various family lines of Lannoy in Flandres, Holland, France, Westphalia, Italy, England and America. I—Robert. II—Hugues. III—Guilbert. IV—Jean "Percheval."

I: ROBERT de LANNOY seigneur de Maingoval & de LYS in 1349. He died without issue about 1366. His will or testament 1366 was witnessed by HUES GILBERT & JEAN called PERCHEVAL [meaning valley-head], his brothers. Furthermore "Percheval" differenced with a brisure the shield of his seal thus: a border or hem? (ourlet) placed upon the shoulder of one of the lions. [fr. Pere Anselmes Gen.] Ourlet may mean Bourlet; this would explain the brisure much better. Bourlet is a wreath of several ribbons twisted into a hoop or circle. In this case the bourlet placed upon the shoulder would be used like & resemble a ring or annulet. IV: JEAN de LANNOY called "PERCHEVAL" [Probably the youngest son] seigneur de la Motterie & d'Ogimont Married: Marie de Cordes surnamed Vaudupont (or Waudripont); dame d'Ogimont & de Waudricourt. [One gen. places him as the 5th son of Gilbert IV & Cath. Molembais—but this is very unlikely.] "A daughter was Marguerite de Lannoy married to Louis le Val—but it is not certain from which of these brothers was her father." His armes are: Lannoy differenced with an ourlet (bourlet ?) upon the shoulder of one of the lions. Not stated which Lannoy, with or without bordure, probably the former, they had a dau. Jeanne & Jean de Lannoy who follows: see Motterie Line: Armes of Cordes de Waudripont; of Belgium. Ancient armes: Or, semé de tréfiles az., with 2 huchets (horns) adossés gu. garnished az. brochant over all. Crest: Head & neck of a griffon or, between a wing or & az. This is apparently the crest used in fig. 8.

RAOUL de LANNOY & JEAN de LANNOY appear as écuyers (esquires) in the company of the seigneur de Vierville incorporated in that of Henry de Thienville sire du Mesnil-Garnier September 1368—cabinet de Gaignieres—Probably younger sons who left no issue, or Jean is Jean "Percheval" and Raoul possibly a 5th son.

 apparently extinct in France.

II: HUGUES II de LANNOY succeeded his brother René in 1366 and was living in 1373 seigneur de Lannoy de Lys & de Maingoval. He made in 1373 an endowment in the church at Lys where later he was buried. Married: Marie de Berlainmont or Berlaymont daughter of Fastre de Berlainmont chevalier. Coat-armor: Azure, a bande—bend—argent charged with three eagles sable. Hugue II, inherited & bore his fathers' armes: Arg. 3 lions rampant sinople crowned or, with a bordure engrailed gules: They had: Jean "le Ramager" who follows.

JEAN I de LANNOY surnamed "le ramager" (the singer or warbler) seigneur de Lannoy de Lys & de Maingoval (son of Hugues II). He built the chateau de Lannoy [castle at Lannoy] where we find "Jean de Lannoy écuyer (esquire) who was at a review with six other écuyers of his company April 22 1378." "Jean de Lannoy one of nine écuyers of the company of Binart du Perray écuyers (esquires) de la company de Pierre de Havesquerque, seigneur de Raisse chevalier, captain of the ville d'Ardres, in Sept. 1410." "Jean de Lannoy one of fifteen écuyers of the company of Antoine de Lay chev. Boch who was killed at Rosay in Brie Oct. 3 1411." "Jean de Lannoy one of the écuyers of the company of Guy de Laval seigneur de Gaure écuyer banneret, who was killed at Pontoise Oct. 4 1411." He married: Jeanne de Croy daughter of Jean seigneur de Croy GRAND-BOUTEILLER de FRANCE (killed at Agincourt 1415) (Chief Butler to the KING 1405 ?) & wife Marguerite de Craon—who re-married Jean seig. de Sombresse—Armes Croy: Arg., 3 fasces gules—see chap. on Gold. Fleece—they had a 2d son Antoine de Lannoy seigneur de MAINGOVAL who follows succeeded to his bro. & the eldest son and LANNOY heir Jean II. Note: Jean "le Ramager" is called the first Jean de Lannoy showing that Jean de Franchimont was not counted as a Lannoy.

JEAN II de LANNOY seigneur de Lannoy & de Lys. He was created a Chevalier de la TOISON d'OR in 1451 (L) & was the fourth CHANCELLOR of that Order, under the duc de Bourgogne—He was an AMBASSADOR to England for the treaty of Peace with France 1453, being the end of the "Hundred years' War" [Louis XI King of France & Henry VI of Eng.]. He was captain of "cent hommes d'armes" (100 men at arms) in the war against the Gantois. Gouverneur of the cities of LILLE, Douay & Orchies. Bailly d'Amiens Captain of Dourlens (Doullens ?) and instituted in 1458 GOVERNOR of HOLLANDE, Zelande &

Frise (Friesland). He acquired the estates or seigneuries de Rummes, Sebourg & le chateau de la Marche. He died 1497 & was interred in the Church of Lannoy. His succession to the head of Franchimont & Lannoy. Being already the Chief of Lannoy he in 1451 inherited from his kinsman Théobald marquis de Franchimont & comte de Tourinnes the RIGHT to bear the full undifferenced coat-armor of Franchimont now called Lannoy [see Golden Fleece Hist. Chev. L. " bore Lannoy plain "]. Thus laying aside his father & grand-father's coat of " Lannoy with a bordure engrailed gules." In this way the House of Lannoy came to bear the full armes of Franchimont. He married 1st: Jeanne de Poix dame de Brimeu dau. of Louis de Poix seigneur de Brimeu & de Saint Messant had Jeanne de Lannoy dame de Brimeu m. Philippes de Hornes seigneur de Gaesbeck son of Jean de Hornes seigneur de Baussignies & wife Marguerite de la Tremoille. Married 2d: Jeanne de Ligne dau. of Michel de Ligne, seigneur de Barbançon & wife Bonne d'Abbeville. Armes: Arg. 3 lions gu. (see Tourcoing line). 1—Bonne dame de Lannoy married her relative PHILIPPES de LANNOY seigneur de Santes & de Rollaincourt. She died 1453 (see Willerval line). 2—Marie de Lannoy dame de Sebourg m. Jean seigneur de Beaufort in Artois. 3—Jacqueline de Lannoy m. Jean de Henin seigneur de Fontaines.

SEIGNEURS de MAINGOVAL

Feb. 24, 1525, the "bloody" battle of Pavia was fought. "Immediately after the Diet of Worms (1521) Charles left Germany and he did not come back for about eight years. During this time his thoughts were chiefly taken up by his great struggle with Francis I., of France, who had seized the Duchy of Milan. In 1525 Francis was made prisoner at the battle of Pavia. He was taken to Madrid, and was not set free till he had agreed to very hard terms; but he did not keep the treaty he had signed." [James Sime.]

Lannoi (Lannoy)

Francis I of France, after a brilliant campaign, in which he drove back the imperialists from Provence to the Milanese, very unwisely employed his army in sieges, instead of pursuing his enemies with vigor to the other side of the Carnic Alps. Accumulating errors he weakened an army of 40,000 men by dividing it; detaching from it a body of 10,000 soldiers upon an expedition into the kingdom of Naples.

After having taken Milan he commenced the siege of Pavia.

That city, well fortified, had for governor Antonio de Leva, a great captain, commanding a numerous and warlike garrison.

The French monarch attacked the place with vigor, but he evinced indecision in his points of attack. The siege was protracted. Pavia was reduced to extremity; the garrison mutinied more than once for want of pay; the governor was even in dread of seeing the city delivered up to the French by his unruly troops; but his genius equally firm and fertile in resources, contrived to keep them to their duty. (Charles de) Lannoi, viceroy of Naples for Charles V., was informed of the distress of Pavia.

The taking of that place might complete the disbanding of the imperial troops for want of money and subsistence; he felt that this was the moment to venture to attack his enemy, and to attempt an action, hazardous without doubt, but which might re-establish the affairs of Charles V. in Italy. He set out then, accompanied by the Marquis de-Pascara and the constable de Bourbon. At his approach, the French monarch called a council; prudence would have commanded him to avoid an engagement, to raise the siege, and to refresh and enlarge his army: "Sire," said La-Trémouille to him, "the true honor in war is to succeed."

"A defeat can never be justified by a battle; you risk your army, your person, and your kingdom, and you risk nothing by raising the siege." The monarch was deaf to the councils of wisdom; his romantic spirit fancied that his honor would be compromised.

The Admiral Bonnevert promised so to dispose his troops that he should conquer his enemies, that the imperialists should not dare to attack him, and that Pavia should fall into his hands. The king followed this fatal and pernicious advice. The troops were nearly equal in numbers on both sides, each reckoning about 30,000 men. The imperialists first fell upon the rear guard of the French, placed at the castle and in the park of Mirabel. They expected to carry it if the king did not come to its assistance; and if he did come, they should make him lose the advantage of the position in which he was fortified.

What Lannoi anticipated, happened. Scarcely did the French monarch perceive the danger of his brother-in-law the Duke of Alençon, who commanded the rear guard, than, impatient to signalize himself he rushed forward at the head of his cavalry, and fell upon the imperialists. His artillery, placed with much skill by Gailon-de-Genouillac, and served with much spirit, fired at first with such success, that every volley carried away a file. The Spanish infantry being unable to resist this terrible fire precipitately broke their ranks, to seek shelter, in great disorder, in a hollow way. Such a brilliant commencement dazzled Francis; he forgot that he owed all his success to his artillery, believed himself already the conqueror, and came out from his lines.

This inconsiderate movement placed the prince between his own artillery and the fugitives and rendered his cannon useless. The face of the battle was changed in a moment; the viceroy advanced with the gend'armerie and a body of arquebusiers; the King was pressed on all sides. The French gend'armerie did not, in this battle, sustain its ancient reputation: it was beaten and almost destroyed by 2,000 Biscayans, of astonishing agility, who, separating by platoons of ten, twenty, or thirty men, attacked it with inconceivable celerity and address. They were seen, all at once making a discharge, disappearing at the moment they should be in turn attacked, and reappearing unexpectedly, again to disappear. It is said that Antonio de Leva had, for some time trained these arquebusiers to fight thus in platoons between the squadrons of the Spanish cavalry, and that he had borrowed the manouever from the Greeks. A stratagem of Pescara's contributed still further to the success of the day. This general having approached the enemy's camp a little before the commencement of the battle, returned to his own to announce that the King of France had just published in his army a prohibition, under a capital punishment, to grant quarter to any Spaniard.

This information although false, produced so strong an impression upon his troops, that almost all the imperialists swore to spare the life of no Frenchman, and to die sooner than surrender. This oath rendered the Spaniards equally invincible in fight and ferocious after victory.

The French monarch sustained the powerful charges of the enemy like a hero. Francis of Lorraine, and Richard de la Pole, the last heir of the house of Suffolk, endeavored, with some companies of Lansque'nets, to disengage him: but they were killed, and the soldiers instantly turned their backs. Bonnevet perished fighting, and was regretted by nobody. Louis-de-la Trémouille shared the same fate: nearly 9,000 warriors, all gentlemen, were left lifeless on the field of battle. The mêlée was terrible around the king.

Left almost alone in the midst of a host of enemies, he inspired terror in all who ventured to approach him.

He had already immolated five of his assailants, when his horse was killed, the monarch fell, and a rush was made to seize him. Springing up, he recovered himself and killed two more Spaniards. At this moment Molac-de-Kercardo, first gentleman of the chamber, perceived the peril of his master, and dispersed or killed all who stood in the way of his zeal.

He placed himself before his exhausted Sovereign, protected him with his sword, and checked the savage impetuosity of the Spanish soldiery, but Kercardo fell while defending the king, who refused to surrender to anybody but the Viceroy of Naples: "Monsieur de-Lannoi," said he, "there is the sword of a king who deserves consideration, since before parting with it, he has employed it in shedding the blood of several of your people, and who is not made prisoner by cowardice, but by a reverse of fortune." Lannoi fell on his knees, received the arms of the king with respect, and kissed his hand, while presenting him with another sword, saying, "I beg your pardon, your Majesty will accept of mine, which has spared the blood of many of your subjects. It is not becoming in an officer of the emperor to behold a king disarmed although a prisoner." Francis was taken to Madrid and held as a prisoner for thirteen months and released. (Charles de) Lannoy was offered the Duchy of Burgundy by the King of France provided the deputies were willing. They objected to the king dismembering the French monarchy. Fr. Fr. a Hist. of the Netherlands

“His first patron was the infamous John of Bavaria, the warlike Bishop of Liège, surnamed, from his cruelty to his own subjects, Jean Sans Pitié. On his death-bed this stormy prelate recommended Jan Van Eyck, “his painter and varlet de chambre,” to the magnificent Philippe le Bon, Duke of Burgundy.

Of all the rich and rebellious towns of Flanders, Bruges, in the time of the Van Eycks, was the richest and the most flourishing. This prosperous commercial city was the favorite residence of the good Duke Philippe, who more frequently held his court there than in any other of his domains. Could there be more favorable conditions for the development of the fine arts? A prosperous city, with a wealthy bourgeois class, and a magnificent court, ruled over by a despotic monarch, who loved art for its own sake as well as from motives of ostentation. It was to this city and this court that Jan Van Eyck came, in the early part of the fifteenth century, accredited by the recommendation of Jean Sans Pitié, who not only left his painter, but likewise his dominions, to Philippe le Bon. In 1428 he was employed on more open and important service. Philippe, who had already lost two wives, desired again to enter into matrimony, and being pleased with the description he had received of Isabel of Portugal, he sent an embassy to that country to negotiate a marriage. With his ambassadors, Hue de Lannoy, and the Sire de Roubaix, he associated his painter, who was to paint the portrait of the young princess, and to send it home at once to Flanders, for Philippe to judge of, we may presume, before finally committing himself to the alliance. The ship in which the embassy from Bruges sailed was driven by reason of bad weather to put into three English ports, Sandwich, Plymouth and Falmouth, on her outward voyage, so that it is probable England had the honor of a visit from the great Flemish painter. Finally, however, Portugal was reached in safety, December 18, 1428, and Jan Van Eyck obtained sittings from the lovely Isabel, and sent her portrait painted “bien au vif” to her suitor. After having thus ac-completed his commission, he went on a pleasure tour through Portugal and some parts of Spain, returning to Lisbon the following July, when the portrait and the negotiations having proved successful marriage of Philippe of Burgundy and Isabel of Portugal was celebrated by proxy with great splendor, the feasts and rejoicings on the occasion lasting until September, when the youthful bride at last set sail for her husband's dominions.

9-A. BAUDOUIN de LANNOY s. de Molembais & de Solre-le-Chateau—born before 1439 died 7 May 1501. He was a Chevalier de la TOISON d'OR (LXXXIX), Chamberlain & Premier Maitre (Master) d'Hotel de Marie de Bourgogne & Maximilien arch-duke d'Austria [1459-1519]—after 1477. Served with the duc de Bourgogne at the siege of Beauvais in 1472—& was Gouverneur de Zutphen he married: Michelle d'Esne dame de Conroy daughter of Amé (Anne) seigneur d'Esne d'Haullien & (wife?) Habilan de Mannilla. She died 22 April 1511 they had Philliporte de Lannoy Anne de Lannoy, Hughs de Lannoy a priest at Liége & the heir Philippe who follows. Armorial Bearings: bore Lannoy in full differenced en surtout an écusson with the armes de Berlaymont, Barry of six vair and gules. Crest, mantling & motto the same as borne by his father Baudouin of Molembais. He was knighted by Maximilien the Emperor [1493-1519]—10-A PHILIPPE de LANNOY (Lannoi s. de Molembais, de Solre-le-Chateau & de Conroy (or Cauroy) born before 1501 died 12 September 1543. Created in 1531 a chevalier de la TOISON d'OR [Gold. Fleece] (CLXXXIII) & also a Knight of the Golden Cross by the Emperor Charles V, between 1519 & '43. This was St. Ferd. III King of Castile & Leon 1200-52 & later Juan Manuel duc de Peñafiel abt. 1325 is found. But nothing appears to give any final proof of either connection. The Cordovas comtes de Figueroa use in their quartered coat " Manuel & Leon." The Manuel family bore for armes: of Castile " Manuel & Leon " of Spain comtes d'Atalaya " Portugal & Manuel " of Belmont " Manuel & Leon." (A) Jean Manuel bore Manuel: Gules, a winged hand holding a sword in pale or. & Leon: Argent, a lion gules—[see Royal chart fig. 5]. It is very apparent that this may be " Jean-Manuel bâtard de Portugal & the founder de la maison MANUEL " his half-brother Alfonse V king of Portugal lived 1432-81—Jean was the 3d child of Edouard I King of Portugal, died 1438—his birth must have been prior to that date, but after 1434 this coincides with the date of the m. 1488 of Marie Manuel, his dau. ?—Her brother was Jean Manuel de la Cerda seigneur de Belmonte & de Campos, and a Chevalier de la Toison d'Or. His birth and position must have been higher than usual to have secured for him this Honor. [The son of 10-A Philippe & Magd. de Burgundy]

11-A JEAN de LANNOY seigneur de Molembais de Solre-le-Chateau & de Conroy born before or about 1511 died 25 May 1560. Made Chevalier de la TOISON d'OR in 1546 (CCVIII), Chamberlain to the Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire Charles V—1519 to 1556: Gouverneur de Haynaut & captain-general of the same province of Flanders in 1559 [Hainault]. He married: Jeanne de Ligne dame de Barbançon daughter of Louis de Ligne seigneur de BARBANCON & his wife Marie de Berghes they had a daughter and a son ? 12-A Gysbert the "Huguenot" who follows with the proofs which place him in this line—Marie de Lannoy dame de Molembais & de Solre-le-Chateau she died without issue 22 May 1567. She married: Jean de Glymes marquis de Berghes comte de Valhain & Chevalier de la Toison d'Or of Brabant—Made comtes de Glymes & of the H. R. Emp. in Dec. 22 1643—Created comtes de Walhain April 1532, marquis May 1533 & prince de Berghes 23 May 1686 [Bergues sur l'Escaud or d'Escalup or Bergen-sur-le-Zoom] Rietstap. It is noticeable that Marie (d. 1567) is not called in the genealogies, as a rule, an heiressof-the-blood. Nor does her husband appear to assume the seigneuries of Molembais etc. customary in such cases. It seems that the seigneuries etc. went to Yolande de Lannoy (her aunt) & then to Marie de Lannoy (a niece).

De Saincte-Marthe: Margareta Burgundica—Philippus Lannoyus, Dominus Molembasii "MARGUERITE de Bourgogne epousa PHILIPPES de Lanoy Seign. de Molembais, Chevalier de l'ordre de la Toison d'Or. Il fut pere de Jean de Lanoy qui de Jeanne de Ligne, sa femme, eut Marie de Lannoy, Dame de Molembais & de solre, femme de Jean Marquis de Bergues sur l'Escamb; mais ils n'eurent enfans." Also stated that: "Jean de Lannoy Seigneur de Molembais, succeda á son (to his) oncle de Falais es terres de la Plate" (uncle's estates). This was Philippe de Bourgogne seigneur de Falais & de Sommerdick, who died unmarried 1542—"Heuterus: MARIA Lannoia Molembaise ac Solre Castell Domina, nupsit IOANNI Bergensi Bergis ad Scaldim Marchioni secundo (2d marquis de Berghes) ac Hammoniorum Praefecto, sed uterique, nullis procreatis liberis, obiit.—MS vetus: Yolent de Lannoy, Marquise de Bergues Dame de S. [The supposed disinherited son of Jean]

12-A GYSBERT de LANNOY [Gilbert] [La Noye or Lannoij]. He was born at Tourcoing in 1545 of the Roman Catholic faith, but became a Protestant, probably just after the time of the siege of Tourcoing 1557 by the Protestants [commonly & at first, 1560, called in derision "Huguenots"—confederates]. To become such was quite sufficient to cause his being disinherited at the time of Jean's death in 1560—He may have resided at Tournay in Hainaut for his son Jean was there 1599. [This city was captured in 1581 by the duke of Parma.] It is certain that he must have been Philippe's (10-A) grandson. (Gysbert or Gyselbert is the Dutch or Nederlandisch for Gilbert—a fam. name.) Gysbert's sons were: Jean de Lannoy born about 1570—& Jacques de Lannoy who married a young girl of Courtrai, May 1601. Recorded in the Walloon Church. Armes of Gysbert: A curious discovery was made when a coat-of-arms used by Dr Barna Delano was sent me—proving to be those of Barbançon—this and Gysbert's birth at Tourcoing placed the line without question in that house. Dr Barna Delano while in Paris, early in 1870, applied to the "Collège Héraldique" college of Heraldry then in official existence under the 2d empire—Napoleon III: the armes given him as his by right of inheritance were BARBANCON: Argent, 3 lions gules—Crest: the unicorn used by the TOURCOING house of Lannoy. On his return to America he had a die made and used on note-paper, a sheet of which is water-marked 1873. Why the college should have granted to him this coat instead of Lannoy plain is a mystery! unless the reason was that "Gysbert the disinherited son had these by right from his mother? Jeanne de Ligne, dame de Barbançon. Note: Philippe d. 1543 & 2d wife Françoise de Barbençon left B & -armes to their son Baudouin d. 1559 see Tourcoing branch Armes. In this case there would have been no reason for separating the Lannoy & Barbençon armes for Gysbert. He could have used them or the mothers armes of Hornes. But not Barbençon alone, except that were his mothers name. Had he used Lannoy & Barbençon then the Tourcoing house would have been meant, or his father's? coat-armor of Lannoy Manuel & Burgundy: then he would have been the heir—Could this have been known in 1870? The armes are therefore Barbançon borne through Gysbert's supposed mother Jeanne de Ligne. Who used the same coat as Françoise de Barbançon, [their fathers were doubtless kinsmen]. From "Heraldry: Woodward & Burnett" Vol 2, 492. "The princes of Arenberg . . . bear en surtout the arms of Ligne: Or, a bend gules, quartered with those of Barbançon Arg. 3 lions rampant gules, crowned or. . . . for Margaret, sis & heir. of the last count of Arenberg married Jean baron of Ligne & Barbançon . . . Prince H.R.E. 1565." Also Barbançon (ducs & princes) of Brabant, now extinct, bears Arg., 3 lions gules, armed, lampassé & crowned or. Cry: Barbançon! The house of Ligne seigneurs de Barbançon used the Barbançon armes. It was with considerable hesitation and doubt that I placed "Gysbert" as son of Jean—for more than a year I solicited and criticised the data, let others judge, while: For general proof we have—1st The change of religious faith—often causing disinheritance & the removal of the name from all records, that future heirs might not inherit (as Louis XIV did 1685). 2d The Barbançon armes & Lannoy crest given to Dr Delano 1870 by the College of Heraldry at Paris. 3d Gysbert names his son Jean & who names his son Philippe 1621, Gysbert's supposed father being Jean & grandfather Philippe. 4th Marie de Lannoy not being designated the "heiress." 5th The birthplace of Gysbert being Tourcoing (1545). The births registered there do not begin until 1594—6th That there is certainly strong proof of Gysbert being a grand-son of 13-A Philippe de Lannoy. Finally: Gysbert was of the Tourcoing house and a descendant is given the armes of Barbançon, which would in Heraldic law place him as above.

13-A JEAN de LANNOY or Lanoy was born about 1570 & died in Leiden 1604 he married at the Walloon church (Tournai) January 13, 1596: Marie le MAHIEU of a Brabant family. Armes: Gules, a chevron or, accompanied in chief of 2 besants argent, & in pointe of a quintefeuille (cinquefoil) or.— they had 1st Esaie (Isaiah) de Lanoy baptised in the church of Tournai Hanau [Belgium] "le fils de Jean et MARIE le 26 March 1599 [M. le Maire de Tournai failed to find this in the Registres de l'État-Civil-Jan 30 1896]. They were living in Leiden Holland September 26 1602.

THE AMERICAN HOUSE

14-A 2d PHILIPPE de Lannoy (La Noye). He was baptised in the Walloon church December 6th 1603, b. 1602. Those present were, his parents & Tonnette de Lannoy (Antoinette) & Marguerite de Lannoy [Marie de Lanoy married in 1605 her 2d husband Jean-Pesyn or Pesin (Tournaisis). Armes: Arg. 2 palmes sinople posées in saltire: & a cerf natural over all (sur le tout). She had no children by this m. One reads in—"de Beschryving der Stad Leiden 1762 1-st deel bl. 323"—[Description of the town of Leiden 1762 part I page 323]—by Frans van Mieris, of a home for the congregation of the French Church having been built on the Pieters Kernhof by Jan Pesyn and Maria de Lanoy who died 1650—Above the entrance, which seems to have been added later on bearing the date 1633 or 1655, are inscribed in stone the following verses—

' Hier ziet men int het puin van een bonnvallig nest
Een fraai geboungesticht door auchtlooze echtgenooten
Voor veel behoeffigen schoon ereemden die verstootten
Zqu uit hun Vaderlandt en eredig hier gevest.'

' Here you see of the ruins of a dilapidated hut—
 By a childless couple a fine structure built—for poor Strangers who were cast out from their Fatherland and peaceably here lived.'

[Referring to the Pilgrims, the Walloons, Huguenots etc.]

Also in a museum here in Leiden called the Leidsche Lakenhal are still to be seen in oils two portraits of Jan Pesyn, two of Maria de Lanoy and one of her daughter by Jean de Lannoy. Photographs of these may be procured one of which is reproduced in this history. [On one of the Hospice buildings, where Robinson lived; a copper commemoration plate was placed by the pilgrim descendants in 1891 ?] Marie de Lannoy was apparently of some service to the Pilgrims at Leiden as she established there before 1609 twelve houses or a hospice for those who were driven from their native land [per inscription]. Pastor John Robinson 1575-1625 there took refuge and doubtless with him others of his congregation. This acquaintance with the pilgrims undoubtedly led the youth only 18 years old to join them later on. "In 1611 John Robinson & others bought a house in the Kloksteeg where the " Pesyn's Hof now stands (near St. Peters church) Leyden Holland." As there is no record of a building for Pilgrim worship it follows that they probably used the Pesyn-Lannoy hospice, they were also restricted to worship in private houses. "The will of Marie de la Noye concerning this foundation is now in Leiden—1893." Dr W N du Rien—Sec. & Lib. of the Unity. Notice here that Philippe (1621) writes his surname both de Lanoy de Lanoie & de La Noye; also that Peter (1689) of New Amsterdam writes his surname both d'Lanoy, de Lannoy & de La Noy; & Jean of Eng. is de la Noy. This is sufficient evidence to definitely place the surname and the common origin of the emigrés. The Lannoy's were never a French family, being of pure Norman & Flemish blood, much superior to the English, French German etc. in civilisation during the later middle ages (900 A.D. to 1453).

Philippe died in Bridgewater Mass. 1681. He was married first in 1634 & 2d 1657 & had five sons & four daughters. He used the names peculiar to this line; Thus Philippe—Jean—? Gysbert—Jean—Philippe—(1621)—Philip Jr. & John (Jean). He appears on Hotten's List of Emigrés to America as: "Philip De La Noye." He left Leiden to join the ship "Fortune" the first vessel to follow the "Mayflower." It came from London England bringing the Patent of Government, John Pierce & 35 colonists. They landed at Plymouth Massachusetts on November the eleventh 1621. It was at this time that the Narragansets sent the famous bundle of arrows tied with a snake skin to Gov. Bradford, who returned it stuffed with powder and bullets.

Winslow” states: > “Philip de La Noye . . . from Leyden born of French parents; who coming to age of discernment, demanded also communion with us, and proving himself to be come of such parents as were in full communion with the French churches, was hereupon admitted by the church of Plymouth . . . and upon letters of recommendation from the church of Plymouth, hee was also admitted into fellowship with the church at Duxbury.” In Baird's History of the Huguenot Emigration to America Vol. 1, p-158 it is stated that: “W'm Molines & his daughter Priscilla, afterward the wife of John Alden, and Philip De la Noye and others remained in Leyden.” Major Delano will from this landing in America 1621 carry forward the history of ten generations to our own times (1899).

From “The Pilgrim Fathers of New England”

By John Brown B.A. D.D. 1896

“In the month of November the Nanset Indians passed on to Plymouth the intelligence that a ship was seen making her way into the Cape harbour. What could it be? No vessel had been seen since the Mayflower left, nor were they expecting any till the spring came round. England and France were then at war; could it be that these were Frenchmen, with hostile intent? A cannon was at once fired from the battery, to call in all who were out in the fields, and soon every man who could shoulder a musket fell into his place, and stood on the outlook. The alarm turned out to be needless. The stranger drawing nearer proved to be a friend, for the English flag was seen floating at her masthead. It was the ship Fortune, bringing thirty-five new colonists, among them being William Brewster's eldest son, John Winslow a brother of Edward, and Robert Cushman. ‘The plantation’ says Bradford, ‘was glad of this addition to its strength.’ . . . In addition to her passengers, the Fortune brought the colonists a patent of their land from the Council of New England, drawn up in the name of John Pierce and his associates, . . . This document, bearing date June 1, 1621, is still preserved in the Pilgrim Hall at Plymouth, and bears the signatures and seals of the Duke of Lenox, the Marquis of Hamilton, the Earl of Warwick, and Sir Ferdinando Gorges, . . . gave to Pierce and each of his associates a hundred acres of land." Thus our forefather Philippe De La Noye (Lannoy) arrived in the new land. The following will also show that Philippe acted as a soldier. "Standish further placed all able to bear arms under a general muster or training, forming with the new-comers a battalion some fifty strong." Philippe's (15-A) sons were: 1—Philip Delano or De La Noye Jr—1640 2—Dr Thomas Delano or De La Noye—1642 3—John Delano or De La Noye—1644 4—L't Jonathan Delano or De La Noye—1648 5—& Samuel Delano or De La Noye—1659. The Leiden Holland data & "Gysbert 1545" was obtained in its raw and meagre state from Mr Rammelman Elsevier (W. I. C. R.—Elsevier) September 1879 "Archiviste de Leide" (died 1884 ?) & H. F. G. Gerlings, "Leidsche Bankvereeniging" & the John A Delano, Diary & Edward Delano's visit to Amsterdam in 1852 when he was presented by W. R. Manderly to Monsieur de Lannoy, who gave him the impression of his arms (Arg. 3 lions). [Nothing has been obtained to show who this Lannoy was, but he may have been of the Holland branch; which see.] Mr R. E. adds that: "His lists of births marriages baptisms & deaths give de Lannoi—de Lannoy—de Lano—de la No—de la Noye—de la Noy—de Lannoy—de Lanno—de Lonoy—de Launoy & Lano' often the parish clerk spelt as he pleased. No doubt but that 'de Lannoy' was the cultivated way of spelling, some used 'de la Noye' other spellings are corruptions."

This letter is finished at the pages on the seigneurs de Tourcoing—The birth register begins 1594 thus excluding “Gysbert 1545” This list of “Delannoy or de Lannoy” appear to be all of one branch & doubtless came from some younger son or cadette of the Tourcoing house [or even earlier branches] of Lannoy, it is now apparently extinct, at least in Tourcoing. The writing Lannoy as Delannoy is simply an old and common clerical error. . . . Received from Monsieur le Maire de Tourcoing by Mortimer Delano.

The principal families taken from the list & arranged are: “when chil were born” 1595—Vincent de Lannoy & wife Marie Descamps & 1615—Vincent de Lannoy & wife Marie Decamp [the same persons] 1595—Jean de Lannoy & wife Marguerite Bouche 1597—Jean de Lannoy & wife Agnes Deberghe (de Berghe) & 1610—Jean de Lannoy & wife Agnes Deberghe—same—& 1613—Jean de Lannoy & wife Agnes De le bergue (de le Bergue) [the same persons] 1597—Pierre de Lannoy & wife Petronille Deletombe 1598—Pierre de Lannoy & wife Jeanne de la Rue 1597—Philippe de Lannoy & wife Paschasie de le Voye 1614—Jacques de Lannoy & wife Marie de Lannoy 1612—Guillaume de Lannoy & wife Antoinette Pouche 1613—Jean de Lannoy & wife Marguerite Holbecaz 1617—Jean de Lannoy & wife Caterine Cateau 1619—Jean de Lannoy & wife Jeanne Lerouge 1619—Ambroise de Lannoy & wife Marguerite Desurmout [de Surmont or de-sur-Mont ?] From the data I have been able to examine it appears that the lords of Tourcoing & the cadette families were all extinct by 1700, if not earlier. Tourcoing is seven miles from Lille & has almost joined Roubaix. It has been famous since 1350 for woollen manufactures—It was besieged in 1477 & by the Huguenots 1556. Population over 65000.

A PARADOX

By Odet De la Noue, Lorde of Teleignie

"That Adversitie is more necessaيرة Than Prosperite—and that of all Affliction Close Prison is most pleasant and most Profitable— [On 25th May 1594 entered on Stationer's Register]

'Then may I well conclude with reason and assurance,
That there's no better state then to be kept in durance,
A sweeter kind of life I never proved then there;
Nor was I ever toucht with lesser grieffe and care,

If that I care at all, it is for others cause,
 And for the miseries this time's corruption draws
 But being well assur'd that nothing here betideth
 Against GOD'S ordinance and will, that all things guideth;
 And knowing him to be good, just, and most of might,
 I gladly yeeld my selfe to the order he hath plight, ?
 For hee it is, that now makes me accept so well
 And like of his estate which others hate as Hell;
 He 'tis, that heretofore vouchsaf't me reliif
 When as I was opprest with a more grievous grief;
 He 'tis from whom I hope in time to come no lesse
 Although a hundred-fold were doubtful my distresse
 Yea, hee it is that makes me profit every day;
 And also so content in this estate to stay,
 That of my libertie I am not now so faine
 To think my libertie a happier life to gain;
 For, I were well content from hence no more to go
 If I might profit most my friends and country so.
 Now here I humbly pray—expecting such an end—
 The Lord still towards me his favour to extend;
 And that He will vouchsafe still to all at like grace
 To all that for like cause are handled in like case."

Maison de Lannoy in Picardie

This line has not been found in the several pedigrees, that the line is of Flemish. Lannoy there can be no doubt for the "gold chain" for some generations surrounded the shield of the Lannoy arms in memory of his bravery. Raoul de Lannoy He was at the siege of Quesnoy or after Hesdin in 1477 and was there decorated for bravery by Louis XI King of France—"One of the principal recompenses for brave knights (chevaliers) consisted in a gold chain placed around the neck, the links being in number according to their merit of valour. The king in placing this on the brave Raoul said—"Par la Pâque-Dieu, mon ami, vous êtes trop furieux en un combat; il vous faut enchaîner, car je ne veux point vous perdre, désirant me servir de vous plus d'une fois"— [By the God of Easter! my friend you are very furious in a combat, if your fault is enchained it is because I do not wish to see you lost and desire you to serve me many times yet] He was the first to mount the breach. The chain was of 500 escus or écus value (abt. $600.) He received also the command of a company of footmen. Raoul bore for armes: Argent, 10 annelets gules (annulets or rings) placed 3, 3, 3, & 1—This is probably an assumption or new grant to commemorate the decoration for the armes do not appear to have been afterward used by any family of Lannoy. See Vraie etc. by Palliot Paris 1660 & Hist. du Blason Eysenbach 1848 & Science des Armoiries par le marquis de Magny Paris 1856.

Lannoy d'Ameraucourt

This line of Lannoy appears as the seigneurs d'Obriscourt et d'Ameraucourt and comtes de Lannoy They are allied to Charlemagne the emperor through Jean de Lannoy chevalier who m. in 1300 Blanche de Vermandois: their son was held over the baptismal font by his uncle Hugues de Vermandois who gave to him the estate of Obriscout and charged him and his descendants to bear the armes of Vermandois which was done Coat-armor: Or and azure chequy. (following MM. de St Marthe) This line doubtless came from the old house of Lannoy either long before the heiress married Franchimont in 1310 or at that time through some cadet of Lannoy Here again there is no mention of the old Lannoy coat-armor. Item: Jean de Lannoy, chambellan du roi bore in 1480 (un échiquete) a checker [chamberlain to the King] The family is now extinct?—This line of Vermandois is apparently of the Line from Herbert II comte de Vermandois [see royal chart] Coat-armor Lannoy d'Ameraucourt [Picardie] Echiqueté d'or et d'azur, de quatre tires. (checkered or & azure of 4 rows).

LANNYOY or LAUNOY in NORMANDY

In the register of the chamber of comptes is mentioned BENOIT de LANOY ecuyer 1452 Later seigneurs de Clermont The genealogy of this house is brief and claims no connection with Lannoy of Flandres Given in an old French Gen. Coll. of ten vols. The line is extinct or unknown after 1648 Coat-Armor: Argent, an eagle displayed sable. See the "Notes on the Lannoys of the 'Dossier' of this family," there will be found many resident in Normandy Final research will doubtless show an origin from ancient Lannoy 1096.

This is the time of Leisler's revolution? He deposed the Jacobite L't Gov. Nicholson & proclaimed W'm & Mary 1689. He assumed the L't Gov.'s position, but laid down his power in 1691. Gov. Sloughter hesitated to sign the warrant which so unjustly caused his execution for treason? A paper says that "he appointed Peter D Lanoy to collect the Rev's. allowing him a great salary & all the perquisites of that office—" Gov. Leisler and the others were cleared of all charges made against them, by Parliament at London. Nothing more is found about Peter de Lannoy after the Peticion (1691)—Note: the various forms of Lannoy & the exact similarity of signatures Philippe De La Noye 1621 Abraham & Peter De La Noy 1652 & 1671 all from Holland.

FIRST MAYORS OF NEW YORK.

Mayor Van Wyck (92d) has had two predecessors as first Mayor of New York—the first Mayor the city had and the first Mayor elected by the people.

Seventy-seven Mayors have preceded Mr. Van Wyck in the office of Mayor of New York. Of these twelve were appointed by British Governors of the province. The others were elected by vote of the people.

Thomas Willett was the first Mayor. In 1664 the British wrested New York from the Dutch and Col. Nicholls was made Governor. The next year he appointed Thomas Willett Mayor, to govern the city in company with five Aldermen and a Sheriff. Willett was one of the Plymouth Pilgrims, but had been for fifteen years a merchant in New Amsterdam. He was not a political partisan, and was selected because he could unite the Dutch and English in support of the new form of municipal government. Willett's influence with the Governor obtained the first establishment in this island of trial by jury.

The city was then only a village of 1,500 inhabitants who lived in eighteen streets, all below what is now Wall street. It had only one church, the Dutch Reformed, inside the old fort at Battery place. Under Willett the service of the Church of England was performed there and permission was given to the people to build a Lutheran church.

For twenty-four years the people were apparently content with appointed Mayors. Then, in 1689, they demanded a man who should be chosen by themselves. A religious war was imminent and the city was divided against itself. It was amid shouts of "No Popery" that Pieter De Lanoy, a Hollander, was elected Mayor—the first to receive the office by the franchise of the people. On Oct. 14, protected by a guard of soldiers, he took his office in the old City Hall in Coenties slip. He reconciled the opposing factions.

The northern boundary of the city then was still Wall street. The public treasury held about $3,865, and a year later the assessed value of all city real estate was $78,231.

The following rare and valuable list of papers chartes manuscripts parchments deeds etc relating to the maison de Lannoy, is well worth publishing in the genealogy of this house They offer much for future investigation. Had there been time, and room in the book, the entire list with but a few exceptions would have been reproduced, as it is the existence of such papers is fully shown. Those who desire copies for themselves can procure such by writing to Paris per address giving the "number & date" I am deeply indebted to the kindness of Monsieur Louis Joriaux Directeur of the Archives de la Noblesse of Paris, for this most interesting and unique paper.

SPANISH ORDER.

A Brief Outline of the Order of the Golden Fleece
1429 to 1899

AUSTRIAN ORDER.

“HISTOIRE de l'ORDRE de la TOISON d'OR Depuis son Institution jusqu' la Cessation des Chapitres Generaux” par le Baron de REIFFENBERG Bruxelles 1830 [Vol. of Plates in folio] This history of the order of the Golden Fleece from 1429 to about 1700 begins with: Sommaire L'ordre de la Toison d'Or was instituted at Bruges Flandres January 10th 1429 by Philippe le bon duc de Bourgogne [Burgundy] & who married (3d time) the same day the Infanta Elisabeth (Isabelle) daughter of John King of Portugal. Philippe was the first CHIEF of the ORDER of the GOLDEN FLEECE—he was duc de Bourgogne, duc de Brabant, duc de Limbourg & duc de Luxembourg—Pair [Peer] de FRANCE, comte de FLANDRES, comte d'Artois, comte de Bourgogne, comte de Hainaut, comte de HOLLANDE, comte de Zelande, comte de Namur, & comte de Charolois. Marquis de St Empire, Holy Roman Emp., Seigneur de Frise seigneur de Salins & seigneur de Malines. His Court was the most brilliant and gorgeous in all EUROPE The center of ART LITERATURE and the skilled fine-arts Courtiers prelates scholars and soldiers came from all countries to see and study in this centre of culture and medieval civilisation. He rivaled his Cousin the KING of FRANCE and outshone the Court of ENGLAND He was the most powerful and puissant nobleman of his time and was in reality king though preferring to call himself “duke of BURGUNDY” His son CHARLES le Hardi, Bold, succeeded him in 1467 & was killed at Nancy 1476-7 He was the second CHIEF of this ORDER. His only child—daughter & heiress of all his possessions succeeded and became the most powerful alliance sought after in Europe. Marie de Bourgogne was duchesse de Brabant etc. comtesse de Flandres etc. she died when 26 years of age. In 1477 she married MAXIMILIEN archduke of

AUSTRIA & later EMPEROR, he died 1519 By his marriage he became the third CHIEF of this ORDER and the succession descended to the Austrian House of HAPSBURG The present GRAND MASTER de l'Ordre de la Toison d'Or, Austria, is S. M. I. et R. FRANCOIS-JOSEPH Charles: Emperor d'AUTRICHE. The ORDER is reserved to SOVEREIGNS GRAND PERSONNAGES and CHEVALIERS. The decoration consists of a sheeps fleece in gold pendant from a peculiar gold chain made up of alternating double fusils & pierres à feu (flints) interlaced & a motto, "Ante ferit quam micat" being the devise or badge of the Duke of Burgundy—A Red ribbon—[see heading] Some of the present CHEVALIERS of this ORDER, AUSTRIA, are: OTHON I king de BAVARIA & comte Palatin du Rhine, his uncle Prince LUITPOLD the Regent, ALBERT king of SAXONY, LEOPOLD II king of BELGIUM, UMBERTO I king of ITALIE, Jean II prince de Liechtenstein, Charles I king of Roumania etc. MAXIMILIAN & MARIE de BOURGOGNE had Philippe le Bel Archiduc d'AUSTRIA king of SPAIN d. 1506—His two sons were FERDINAND king of Hungary later Emperor 1556 who became king of Austria & the eldest son CHARLES V Emperor H. R. E. 1519 & king of ESPAGNE, Spain, who was the CHIEF or Grand Master of the SPANISH ORDER Now (1897) held by ALPHONSE XIII king of SPAIN, Castille, Leon, Aragon, Jerusalem, Navarre, Grenada, etc. comte de Habsbourg etc. The order differs slightly from Austria in having leaves just above the fleece & a motto "Pretium Laborum Non Vile" Those who are Chevaliers: WILHELM II emperor of GERMANY [Allemagne], FREDERIC Grand-Duc de BADEN CHARLES-ALEXANDRE Grand-Duc de SAXE-WEIMAR-EISENACH, ALBERT prince de PRUSSE & regent de Brunswick, CHRISTIAN IX king de DENMARK, GEORGE I king des HELLENES, Greece CARLOS I king de PORTUGAL, NICOLAS II Emperor & Autocrat of all the RUSSIAS & tsar of Moscow, OSCAR II king of SWEDEN & NORWAY, ABDUL-HAMID KHAN grand-sultan of Turkey, ALBERT EDWARD prince of WALES duke of Cornwall etc. Knight of the Garter, MUTSUHITO emperor of JAPAN, etc. The rightful CHIEF of this ORDER in SPAIN is Don CARLOS de BOURBON duc de Madrid & king d'ESPAGNE as CARLOS VII (Charles) The present duc d'ORLEANS is to be made a Chevalier of the Austrian ORDER. "The discovery that the Duke of Orleans is not eligible for the decoration of the Golden Fleece surprised the Court of Vienna. A new Knight of the Golden Fleece must have had Roman Catholic ancestors on both sides for eight generations, and his pedigree must be without flaw or stain for the same period. It appears not only that the Regent Orleans married an illegitimate daughter of Louis XIV (Mlle. de Blois), but also that the late Duchess of Orleans (Princess Helena of Mecklenburg-Schwerin), the mother of the Count of Paris, was all her life a Protestant and a member of the Lutheran Church." After Charles V died in 1558 the Chiefs were the Spanish Kings. When Austria acquired the Spanish Netherlands in 1715 the office of Grand Master was claimed as going with these provinces. The dispute remains undecided.

The Order

Philippe "le Bon," being moved thereto with devout zeal to undertake the conquest of the Holy Land, founded this order of Knighthood. The SOVEREIGN is he to whom the dukedom of Burgundy doth lawfully descend. The number of these Knights at the first election were four and twenty, besides the Sovereign; all of Noble blood [afterwards increased by Emp. Charles V].—Their Habit a cassock of crimson velvet and over it a mantle of the same, lined with white which openeth on the right side, and is turned upon the left over the shoulder, embroidered round about with a border of FLAMES FUSILS and FLEECEs, and a hood of crimson velvet on their heads. The collar is of gold wrought of flames and fusils, with the Toison or figure of a Golden Fleece: which Jason won at Colchos or as some suppose Gideon's Fleece, which signifies Fidelity or justice uncorrupted. And this COLLAR or TOIZON they are obliged—upon a penalty—always to wear, not to make any Alterations, and to sell or exchange it is deemed most unlawful. The SOVEREIGN hath in Himself authority absolutely to give and bestow this Honour, when and to whom he pleaseth, And whosoever entereth into the said dignity, must first renounce all other Orders of Knighthood—nevertheless all Emperors Kings and Dukes are excepted, unto whom it is dispenced, that they may wear the Ensigns of this order, if they be the Chief of their own Order. These with other Statutes and Ordinances the Knights are sworn to observe and keep. The Day of their Assembly . . . was once in three years unless the Sovereign otherwise pleaseth. To this Order doth belong four principal Officers viz: a CHANCELLOR, a TREASURER a REGISTER and a KING at ARMS called "TOISON d'OR." [FROM GUILLIM P.-at-A. 1724.] This Order was ranked then, as now, the first and Highest in all Europe. The CHEVALIERS take precedence of all save KINGS. They enjoy great honours and privileges. The Chancelier Germain bishop de Chalon, and an old Chronicle both assert that Philippe founded the ORDER upon the exploit of GIDEON a Judge in Israel after 1300 B.C. who slew the Midianites & used the miraculous fleece. Also to encourage his subjects to take great care of their flocks, whose wool formed a great part of the country's wealth. Thus representing patriotic bravery and home industry. The statutes also declare the recipient must prove four generations of noblesse both paternal & maternal. The armoiries of the Chevaliers were placed in the Church. The number of knights is not limited today. The ORDER was conferred from the foundation to our own times upon gentlemen of the highest distinction, such as statesmen, generals, princes, kings & Emperors. In fact it is more highly prized than any other decoration. It has more of an international character than orders usually possess. The histories

BEING

THE DELANO GENEALOGY

: From 1621-1899 :

by

MAJOR JOEL ANDREW DELANO

“The result of my labors for ten years in this field is lovingly dedicated to my daughters.”

INTRODUCTION

In preparing a genealogical record of the Delano families of this country the compiler little dreamed of the magnitude of the work nor what was before him.

In a conversation with a brother, upon our own immediate branch in Feb 1889, we decided to commence a correspondence with that only to find out if possible the source from whence we came.

A most absurd tradition repeated by our grand father and father which seemed very plausible was often told causing belief in the story. After a time it faded away and light began to dawn. The correspondence accumulated and my brother suggested that I had better continue and compile a record of the name in this country. Rather than abandon the work at this time, when many others had become interested, I came to the conclusion that I would try it and so pursued my investigations. With this in view I caused a circular to be printed and sent out.

There is, and has been repeatedly expressed a general desire, to have the Genealogical Record of PHILIP DE LA NOYE, & the Delano Family from the first settlement in this country, collected, arranged and printed, for the satisfaction and benefit of those now living and their descendants.

Recently the matter has been revived, and during the past year a few individuals have devoted a large share of their time and labor in searching early records, and corresponding with members of the family now living. The undertaking has so far satisfactorily progressed and we are encouraged to persevere, with assurance of successful results, and in this work we desire the aid of every member of the family who can furnish any information. It is the wish to include (when completed) every person of the name of Delano and every person who has married into the family, male and female, living or dead. We intend, as far as possible, to give the place and date of birth, marriage, and death of each one, their occupation or profession, and their residences at different periods. We desire, also, to include notices of the more prominent members of the family, and hope their descendants and friends will furnish us with such incidents, remarks and biographical sketches as they think proper.

We hope and trust that every person who receives a copy of this circular will, without unnecessary delay, give under the heading given below, all the information desired, tracing back his ancestry as far as may be possible; and all collateral branches and descendants, giving in regard to each individual, the place and date of his or her birth, death, marriage, and to whom. Town, County, Probate and Church Records, Family Bibles and Grave Stones may be consulted often and with great benefit; and as this is a matter of equal interest and importance to each one who bears the name of Delano, we ask your hearty co-operation.

Please give this careful and prompt attention, and when filled out return this circular to the undersigned.

I am, respectfully yours,

J. A. DELANO,
GROVE, NEWAYGO CO., MICH.

A different mode of recording families has been adopted from those heretofore presented in genealogies, usually numbered. The oldest branch is completed before taking up the next name in the family and given thus: 1st of Jonathan Delano and so on. Biography and general history is given when known. Errors may be found throughout the work but the compiler has always tried to be correct. To speak of all persons who have manifested an interest in the perfection of the work would be to repeat much of its contents, therefore I will only mention a number of the more zealous ones who have labored with me in gathering data. Prof. Edward Chandler Delano is entitled to great praise for obtaining the records of a large number of branches.

Miss N. P. Delano of New Bedford shares the honor, for her energy and zeal in perfecting the Dartmouth records. L L De Lano of Atlantic has rendered valuable services.

Rufus J Delano of St. Louis Mrs M Delano Knapp of Chelsea & Hon. Columbus Delano late of Mt Vernon his daughter Mrs E Delano Ames all have added much to the work in question.

Dr Frank T Delano of Rockville Center has also been most active. My brother Dennis D Delano of Grand Rapids has assisted in solving many problems also Ellery L De Lano of Wenatchee. One other person [whose grand father was Paul Delano of Fairhaven & Chili] is Mrs. Irene Delano Walbaum of Valparaiso deserves special mention.

I am under obligation to all who contributed to make the work complete, and shall ever hold their memory dear to my heart

Some branches under the head of "broken" I failed to find the connecting link to the parent stem; who becoming indifferent to the memory of their ancestors thus lost their identity.

Genealogy though often a dry and untempting topic, either for reading or conversation, can sometimes be made most attractive. When therefore a family has made history, helped in founding states, ruled over the people and led armies, it is safe to say that its genealogy will prove to be at least instructive reading. Add to this their history and who can deny the real pleasure it will give to all who are of that family. In our world to day it is not so much "who are you?" as "what have you done?"

Now some have the idea that the people of family rarely if ever make people of attainment. No greater popular error has ever been indulged at the expense of truth. Take up any authorised history or biography of great men and women, and with scarcely an exception they are all of the old and well bred families of Europe and America. This goes to show that the members of our family have only to exert their own ambition for the high places, for the rest they already possess.

This family, as our book will show, has ever been honorable and well bred. The professions are all represented and the call of patriotism has ever found Delano's ready.

As to this family in Europe, the history and royal marriages speak more eloquently than the few words allowable in a preface can.

The compiler will indeed miss the words of kinship and good will that have come to him all these years of preparation, and consequently trusts that all his kinsfolk (for has he not toiled over their lives, has he not felt with them the loss of dear ones, or read of their joys and successes of this life. Many who started with him have passed beyond and left him to record their part in life:) will not forget him then; and from time to time send in the events of their branches that he may thus keep on file up to date items, to be passed on to some other genealogist of the family, when the compiler shall no longer record for others.

Yours then cordially

my dear kinsfolk

Joel Andrew Delano

"At the General Court held in Plymouth June 7, 1637,

It was enacted that the colony send forth a company to aid - Massachusetts and Connecticut in their war against the Pequod Indians, in revenge of the innocent blood of the English which the Pequods have shed.

Thirty persons shall be sent for land service, and as many others as shall be sufficient to manage the barque.

Leiftenant William Holmes is elected as leader of this company.

Mr. Thomas Prence is elected to go with the company and to be on the "Counsell of War".

Items Regarding Philip Delaney.

1837. A Jury of 12 (four from Duxbury viz: Love Brewster, Experience Mitchell, Philip Delaney, Moses Simons.) were impannelled, "to set forth heigh ways about Plymouth Duckstarow and the Elele River."

"of the twenty-seven heads of families who arrived in the ship Fortune in 1631 these became at some future times proprietors of land in Duxbury. Robert Hicks, Thomas Prence, Moses Simons, Philip Delano, Edward Bumpus, William Palmer, Jonathan Brewster, Thomas Morton, & William Bassett. Simons and Delano became permanent residents in the town; and here most of their descendants have resided".--pp.64-5.

Delano. "His name was originally spelled De-La-Noye, and he is said to have been a French Protestant, who joined the church at Leyden. He was aged nineteen years on his arrival; was admitted a freeman Jan. 1st, 1632, and early removed to Duxbury, and settled a little north or northwest of Alen, on the north side of Stony or Mill Brook, below the site of the late tack^{g?} factory. His surname was confirmed to him in 1637, extending from the creek at the first bend. The town ran to the north, to Alen's on the South, and from Bumpus' land on the west, to the sea at the east, comprising about 40 acres. He was a man of much respectability, and employed in surveying lands, and was often one of the grand inquest of the colony.

--Francis Hill's
History of the Town of Dublin, 1873

Philip Hill, born in the town of Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1731, was the son of John Hill, J., and of the town of Dublin, 1873.

Philip Hill, Delany, was one of the first members of the town of Dublin, Ireland, and was the son of John Hill, J., and of the town of Dublin, 1873.

--New England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. 7, 1837; p. 334.

Of Philip Delany Winslow speaks as follows: "I am of French parentage" and that he "came from England to the colony"; and "being of age of fifteen years, he was admitted into the Church of the Trinity, and after, upon his removal of his abode to Dublin, where Mr. Ralph Partridge is Pastor of the Church, and upon letters of recommendation from the church at Plymouth, he was also admitted into Fellowship with the church at Dublin".

--ibid., 1731, note.

Philip Delany was born at Dublin, Ireland, of the original population of Dublin, Ireland, and was the son of John Hill, J., and of the town of Dublin, 1873, and daughter of James Churchill in 1737."

--ibid., 1734, note.

Phillip Delaney's name occurs in a Court record dealing with the purchase of land in New York, recorded in the Court records.
--ibid., p. 357

In 1637 Phillip Delaney sold Stephen Deane a piece of land.

Philippe De la Noye, Leyden Holl 1602 son of Jean and Marie de Lannoy, of French protestant faith (Huguenots) who to escape the prosecutions of the Catholic party then in power went to Leiden.
He was baptized there in the Walloon Church 1603 and grew up under the teaching and influence of the separatists of the established Church of England who fled to Holland in 1608 taking up their abode in Leyden.

It is not definitely shown by any authority on the subject whether Philip was one of the passengers on the Speedwell or not, which Bradford says set sail on that vessel; of sixty tons burden from Delfthaven to Southampton England on or about the 7st day of August 1620 and on the 15th both the Mayflower and Speedwell with one hundred and twenty passengers on board some of whom were for the first time joining the company, sailed from Southampton. On the 23d they put into Dartmouth, with the Speedwell leaking and on the 31st sailed again. Further disasters to the Speedwell obliged a return to Plymouth where it was abandoned and eighteen passengers including Robert Cushman gave up the voyage. It is presumed that Philip De-la-Noye was one. Davis's Ancient Landmarks of Plymouth; Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic & Winsor's History of Duxbury from which many extracts are taken. In 1621 another vessel was fitted out, the "Fortune" of 55 tons burden. Goodwin says on Nov 11th 1621 just one year from the day the "Mayflower" sighted the hills of Cape Cod their sentry on Fort Hill shouted "Sail, ho!" The joyful discovery was made that she was the "Fortune," among her list of passengers we find that of Philip De-la-Noye his age given as 19 years old. In 1624 at the distribution of land Philip was awarded one acre as his share. It appears that he gave up possession of this by reason of becoming a resident of Duxbury.

Various writers speak of him in connection with others at that time. Winslow says, "Delano, originally De-la-Noye. He was born of French parents and came from Leyden to New Plymouth and coming to the age of discerning demanded communion with us and proving himself to become of such Parents as were in full communion with the French Churches was hereupon admitted by the Ch of Plymouth, and after, upon his removal of habitation to Duxborrow, where Mr Ralph Partridge is Pastor of the Church, and upon letters of recommendation from the Ch at Plymouth he was also admitted into fellowship with the Ch at Duxborrow and I dare say of him, if occasion requires he may travel from church to church throughout New England. He was admitted permanently Jan 1632-3, being then a resident of Duxborrow." Winsor's Hist. of Duxbury gives same account with his place of residence. "He was admitted a freeman Jan 1 1632-3 and Alden, on the north bury and settled a little north or northwest of the late tack factory brook, below the site of the from the marsh named to him in 1637 extending on the south, at the farther end of the town on the north to Alden's east, and from Bumpus' land on the west, to the sea at the respectability arising about forty acres. He was a man of much re of the grand and employed in surveying lands and was often one of the grand inquest of the Colony. Records of Plymouth Colony Vol I pp 3. c gives the following. "Philip Delano to Hester Dewesbury Dec 19-1634. He was taxed 18 shillings in 1633, and 9 shillings in 1634. On jury May 2-1637 "Volunteer in Pequot War June 7 1637" granted 40 acres in Duxbury Oct 2-1637 drawn on jury Dec 4-1637 on grand jury June 4-1639. From Hist of Middleborough Mass. in Vol 3 NE Hist and Genl Register 1849 is given the names of the first purchasers twenty six in number. Philip Delanoy's name in the list. Appendix in His of Duxbury gives the following The grant of Bridgewater to the inhabitants of Duxbury was made in 1645, fifty four persons Philip Delano's name appearing. Record of Deeds Plymouth County Book pp 107 appear the names of those who by order of the purchasers of Dartmouth met at Plymouth the 7th day of March 1652 to make allotment of their shares which had been purchased of the Indians, signed by John Winslow, John Cooke and Wamsutta in the presence of Jonathan Shaw and Samuel Eddy Nov 29-1652 Philip De-la-Noye with thirty six others which comprised about eight hundred acres as Philip's share, this purchase of his must have been given to his son Jonathan as he does not mention Jonathan in his final disposition of his property. Winsor Hist of Duxbury " in 1637 a jury of 12, four from Duxbury were appointed by the Colony Court to lay out paths and highways and build Bridges in Duxborrow, Philip among them.

Winsor gives the ch. names thus: 1 Philip Jr. 2 Thomas. 3 John. 4 Jane. 5 Rebecca. 6 Samuel. 7 Mary. 8 Jonathan and 9 Hester. Davis thus: 1 Thomas. 2 Mary. 3 Philip Jr. 4 John. 5 Jane. 6 Rebecca. 7 Jonathan. 8 Esther and 9 Samuel. After a careful investigation of the subject the compiler gives them as shown before in order of birth.

Savage says " Philip De-la-Noye removed to Bridgewater where probably he died." " He made no will, but a statement was made that a memorandum was left showing somewhat the intent of Philip. The sons Thomas, Samuel, Philip and John are mentioned and daus Rebecca, and Jane, the bequests are, house and lot to the three eldest, and John 25 acres of woodland at Hammakeset—Rebecca; a yearling heifer—Jane; one cow and heifer. His wife Mary; to have a cow besides her thirds in orchard and land, both upland and meadow. Yoke of old oxen to be improved in common by his three sons, Philip, Thomas, and Samuel. Samuel a horse, cow, two steers, chains and cart. Finally the four youngest children are to receive all the movables at his wifes death. Samuel is mentioned as being the only son of the relict of deceased. The settlement was made July 5-1682, and is recorded in Vol 4, pp 120, of records in the registry of deeds of Plymouth. The regular probate records did not commence until abt 1686. The surname De-la-Noye or Delano has undergone many changes. Philippe De-la-Noye & sons gradually left off the "ye" and wrote it Delano, often changed by ignorant clerks to Dillanoe, Dillape, Dilnow, Dillino. Of late years some place a capitol L in the name and pronounce the name De La-no. Those who wish to combine the ancient and correct form should write the surname thus: "De-lano de Lannoy"

Data received from Mrs Charles L Alden who is engaged on a work which will show the Alden record & 3 gens in collateral branches; informs the compiler that Esther Delano was 1st the wife of Samuel Sampson and 2d the wife of John Soule and that Joseph, Josiah, and Joshua Soule are her ch; gives Esther Sampson-Soule as bur. close to the stone wall near Jonathan Alden's family but no other stones immediately about her. (W'm J. Delano.)

Began a printer in Washington. Moved to Dayton, took up railroading and telegraph. Here his partner financially ruined him. At telegraph office, as manager. To Memphis, Tenn. engaged in newspaper work. Yellow fever became epidemic, his wife dying, he threw his house open for the sufferers. Then to St Louis, Mo. At New Orleans he was engaged on the editorial staff of the "True Delta" when the war began. His family heard from him frequently by the "underground" telegraph. He was imprisoned in Fort Jackson by Genl. Butler and released by his successor, Genl. Banks, on condition that he would take the oath of allegiance or leave the country. He chose the latter and went to Havana. There he was blockade running and while thus engaged died in Mobile, Ala. An upright and consciencious man a sympathizer with the South. His political opinions were not those of his sons who were active in support of the Union.

"H. H. D."

(W'm M Delano.)

Connected with a bank as teller. Just before the war he joined the "Halleck Guards," 1861 he resigned from the bank and was appointed 2d Lieut in the 23d Mo. Inf. After some service in this reg't he was appointed Capt in the 12th Mo. Cav., in which command he rose to Major. He saw service in Mo. and the Southwest and also on the plains, his term of enlistment not expiring with the war '65. Returning to St Louis he entered a bank as teller for several years. His army experience rendered him restless and he went South with Texas or Mexico in view, but, while en route, and stopping with a friend at Stephen, he died.

Rufus Judah Delano (Came to St. Louis, at the age of four years; commenced instruction in the Public schools, afterwards entered Washington University where he passed eight years, graduating as Civil Engineer 1872, then attending St. Louis Law School of Washington University, was admitted to practice of law 1876. After his admission to the bar, he sought exclusive commercial, corporation and civil practice, in which he has been eminently successful. Always a radical republican, he has been continuously identified as a citizen with local and national politics without seeking office,—his business clientage and home duties having a preference.

Mr. Delano is a member of and has been a prominent officer of many of the leading business and social enterprises of the City of St Louis)

St. Louis, November 3, 1897.

“The Union League Club of St. Louis is now fairly established in its new and permanent quarters, Twenty-seventh and Pine streets. The house warming attendance was large, and speeches were made by prominent Republicans, among them President Delano of the club.

The Club is of comparatively recent birth, being but little over nine months old. The president, Mr. R. J. Delano, is an attorney of considerable prominence, with offices in the Laclède building, southwest corner of Olive and Fourth street. He is a Republican of Republicans, an earnest debater, with strong convictions of what is right, which convictions are the rule of his action. The club could have no better guiding spirit in its youthful days, and should be congratulated on having selected him for the position. The time will surely come when Mr. Delano will be called upon to take part in councils of a higher nature, and that he will do himself full justice those who know him intimately implicitly believe. As a lawyer Mr. Delano ranks among the best in the city.”

7 of Judah Delano Jr.

Priscilla Delano,

AN EVENTFUL LIFE OF NEARLY 104 YEARS.

KENT'S OLDEST CITIZEN.

Born December 11th, 1793, at Plymouth, Mass.

Died July 9th, 1897, at Kent, Ohio.

From Kent, Ohio "Courier," July 10th, 1897.

It was a sad message that the "Courier" carried to the public last Friday—that Grandma Spooner was no more.

During the past few weeks this venerable lady had been growing weaker.

It was a peaceful sleeping away. The supposition is that she died about three o'clock.

For years Mrs. Spooner was one of the most noted persons in Northern Ohio. Her birthday was always the object of much interest. That one could live to such an age and still retain all their faculties seemed miraculous.

She passed her one-hundredth birthday anniversary and started on her second century, bright, cheerful and happy. This event was celebrated in the Universalist church, of which the deceased was a member, with due celat. Hundreds came to grasp the hand of the centenarian and wish her many more years of life. For each one she had a kind word of greeting or advice.

She was an honest Christian woman whose life was full of kind acts to all with whom she was connected. She had passed through joys and sorrows, triumphs and failures. She lived twenty-six years before Queen Victoria was born. During her life time great inventors, famous statesmen and noted writers have come and gone.

The place where we now live was at the time of her birth beyond the borders of civilization. She lived before the steamboat, the telegraph or the telephone were known.

Born while Washington was President, she has lived under the administration of every President of the United States.

Priscilla Delano Sanford Spooner was born in Plymnoth, Mass., daughter of Captain Judah Delano. When she was a small child her father moved to Portland, Maine. He owned and was captain of a passenger packet plying between Portland and Boston.

Captain Delano often took one of his children with him on these trips. During one of them Priscilla took a deep interest in some object in the water and while gazing intently upon it she fell overboard. There was excitement on the boat and it was supposed that Priscilla's life was lost. While looking for his child the father saw her long hair floating on the water. He caught the hair with his hands and pulled the nigh-drowned child from the water. It was some time before she fully recovered from her startling experience.

At the time of Washington's death in 1799, there was a parade in Portland. Priscilla's older brother and sister were in the parade and Priscilla, then only six years of age, stood in the window of her home with crape on her arm.

The deceased's brother, Judah Delano, Jr., was for a number of years publisher of the "Sentinel," at Albemarle, N. C. Previous to that he was for fifteen years a proof reader on the "National Intelligencer," at Washington, D. C.

Priscilla's father died in Boston when she was only seven years of age. After that she went to live with her uncle, James Sampson, of Topsham, Maine. Later she returned to school to Portland. Here she was a schoolmate of N. P. Willis, the poet. Priscilla first went to school when she was only four years of age, that being the custom in those days and often received pennies for her good work.

After leaving school, Priscilla was married 1811, to John Sanford. A few years later they moved to New Portland, making the perilous journey overland.

Her husband died in 1840. He was an inventor of some renown, but while many of his inventions were a benefit to the world, they were not to him. He invented the "shoulder to the grindstone," a journal running between two wheels, now in general use. He also invented an improved winnowing machine, a curved plow-share and the hydraulic pulley.

One of Mr. Sanford's most noted accomplishments was the erection of the famous old tide-mill which still stands at Bowdenham, Maine, the only one of its kind in the world. The wheel is twenty-seven feet in diameter with part of the rim out of the water at high tide. The spokes are wide and set diagonally, like the vanes of a wind-mill. It turns eighteen hours of the day by tide power, running one way with the flow and the other with the ebb. With one foot fall of the tide the wheel gives fifty horse power.

Mr. Sanford's last invention was straw board, or straw paper, as he called it, which he had made at the paper mill at Bowdenham. His brother, Hezekiah Sanford, was with Commodore Perry on Lake Erie. His father was a sea captain and navigator.

In 1847, she married Dr. Spooner, a popular and skilled physician. In the fall of 1872 she came to Kent. Of late years she had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. E. T. Sawyer, on Lake Street. She was a member of the Universalist Church and attended there for many years until she became too feeble. Newspapers were welcome visitors to her and she enjoyed them greatly.

The funeral was held at Universalist Church, Sunday, at 2 p.m. Rev. H. K. Riegel, assisted by Rev. T. S. Smedley, conducted the services. The remains were interred at Standing Rock Cemetery, being borne to the grave by four aged neighbors.

Daniel Perkins

Duxbury Pilgrim, 1895

The oldest resident in West Bridgewater celebrated the 91st anniversary of his birthday September 25, 1895.

At age of 14 shipped on board a coaster as cabin boy and for 13 years on the sea. During one of his trips the vessel foundered off the coast of Portugal and he barely escaped with his life.

He was employed in the Dwelley foundry over 50 years. He still retains a vivid recollection of the blockade of the ports of Boston and Duxbury in the war of 1812.

Copy of letter written by Wm Delano from Norfolk Va, Apr 3-1820, to Rev George Barstow of Pembroke Mass.

Orig. copy in the quaint spelling etc of that day

"Dear Sir. It is with pleasure I take this opportunity to write these few lines hoping that they meet you and your family well, with blessings of God. I now belong to the Columbus 74 (guns) under the command of Commodore Bainbridge (Wm 1774-1833 Com. 1812) fitting for sea in Hampton Roads, bound to the Mediterranean Squadron. I have had the misfortune to be severely wounded in a late duel which happened between a young gentleman of this place and myself, in consequence of which it rendered me to be in very low state of health, but I now find myself fast recovering. I expect to be absent from the United States about two years, as soon as I return, I shall hasten to your place of residence to settle all my accounts, you have against me. I have several remarks that I had in view to make but cannot commit to paper. I am now in my countrys service. I shall endeavor at all times to serve faithfully, which I am bound to maintain the credit of my country and I stand ready to defend at all times with honor to myself and the United States. In consequence of the late affair which took place between myself and the young man which I mentioned before originated by his heaving up insulting language respecting my situation, accusing me of being a coward which induced me to fight him, to convince him to the contrary. What I have written to you in this letter I hope you will not mention to any person, wishing you all the happiness and pleasure that the world affords, no more at present. Respectfully yours with sentiments of regard and esteem

Wm Delano

Wm Delano was found on a street in Norfolk Va 1822, in a dying condition and taken into a house near by where he soon expired. The cause of his death is not disclosed in any of the legal proceedings on this estate which went to Nathaniel Delano his uncle and sole heir; (possibly a case of revenge, result of the duel)

Secretary of the Southern California Science Association placed on exhibition yesterday an interesting relic of the assassination in Ford's Theatre of President Lincoln. The performance was "Our American Cousin," in which Laura Keene played. She wore a dress of flowered white moire silk. In the midst of the confusion that followed the fatal shot Laura Keene ran up to where the President was and held his bleeding head in her lap until men arrived to move him. The blood of the martyred President stained a spot six inches square in the front of the skirt of her dress. The next day she cut the piece out and presented it to Mrs. De Lano of San Francisco, who carefully preserved the precious relic."

CHRISTENING

"On Monday morning, January the sixth, the baptism of Priscilla Alden Delano was held at Holy Trinity Church. The Rt. Rev. Henry Codman Potter, Bishop of New York, performed the ceremony, assisted by the rector, the Rev. Charles De Witt Bridgman, the Rev. Ralph Howard Baldwin, chaplain to the Bishop, and the Rev. Charles Robert Dunham Crittenton. The godfather was Charles Nelson Crittenton, founder of the National Florence Missions. Mrs. Ralph Howard Baldwin and Miss Brunetta B. Herrman were the godmothers. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Delano (née Pierson). Priscilla Alden is named for Priscilla, wife of John Alden, made famous in Longfellow's poem, and is the tenth generation in descent from this, her seventh great-grandmother. Present were Mr. Thomas E. Delano & Dr. John Garthwaite Pierson."

The N. Y. Journal in Dec 1897 offered a prize of $1000. for the best forecast of the momentous events of the coming year 1898 Thousands of predictions were received sealed up and stored away in iron boxes until the day before Jan 1 1899 The 5 Judges then selected "Prophecy No 1186" as the best and calling for its coupon signature found it to be the undersigned

"To W R Hearst Esq.

After a careful canvass of all the prophecies in the Journal's Prize Prophecy Contest; we do hereby award the prize of $1,000 to Mortimer Delano of 104 W. 120 St."

Sig. John W Keller, Henry Clews, Isidor Straus, E. H. Emery, Dr Cyrus Edson.

"This is the Prophecy That Won the $1,000 Prize"

"In general a year of prosperity for America (United States) Election of a Republican Governor for New York, small majority. Annexation of Hawaii as a territory to the United States. Failure of Spain in Cuba, and a forced declaration of war against the United States, followed by capture and defeat of troops and navy of Spain. Complete freedom of Cuba Agitation to annex it to the United States. Spain on the brink of a Carlist war and agitation for a republic. The United States decides to build the Nicaragua Canal. Pope Leo XIII dead, succeeded by Cardinal Serapio Vannutelli. Threatened native uprising in India, with Russia in the background. Completion and opening of the Siberian railroad. Germany seizing more land in China. Trouble between England and France in Middle Africa. Change of Prime Ministers in England. Representative of Gladstone becomes Premier. Secretary Sherman retires from the Cabinet. Queen Victoria abdicates, Edward VII King. Success of a submerged torpedo boat in United States Navy. First appearance and use of a motor cycle. Great rush to Alaska. Population increased by hundreds of thousands, 70 per cent from the United States. First railroad built in Alaska. Decease of Cornelius Vanderbilt at Newport. Race for the America cup won by the American yacht. Russia and the United States supreme on the Pacific. A little war between Russia and Japan. Altogether the year is not more remarkable than previous ones. It is perhaps more eventful than calamitous. Fewer accidents than in 1897, and more natural changes in the geographical and political conditions of governments. Literature still continued at a low ebb, with but one or two remarkable works as in 1897. The stage notable for but two productions meriting long runs. As in 1897 there is still room for very much improvement in the fiction department of the newspaper magazine, though this is equally true of the best periodicals. Altogether 1898 is a notable year for the close of this century, but not an epoch-making twelvemonth. Many things are at a standstill, but the new year, as usual, is full of promise.

Mortimer Delano.

SLOSSON GENEALOGY.

By D. WILLIAMS PATTERSON.

(Abridged & Rev. 1899)

1. NATHANIEL SLOSSON 1, (2) (prob. s. of a Nath. ? fr. Eng.—of Yeoman des.) b. about 1696; bought land at Captain's Plain, Norwalk, Conn., Feb. 24, 1720-21; at Kent, Norwalk, March 1, 1720-21; in each deed described as "of Deerfield, Mass." He m. Margaret, b about 1700, dau. of William Belden of Norwalk; "of Norwalk," Nov. 16, 1721, when Samuel Belden gave him a deed of all of said Belden's right in the undivided lands in Norwalk, "in consideration of the love and good will which I have and do bear toward my loving cousin, Nathaniel Slawson of said Norwalk." The value of this gift may be indicated by the fact that eighteen days later, to wit, Dec. 4, 1721, he was rated at £115, in the commonage of Norwalk.

He sold land, with two dwelling-houses, at Pimpewaug, Wilton, for £600, March 31, 1730. The members of the ch at Wilton, at the ordination of Rev. William Gaylord, Feb. 13, 1732-3.

Bought of Ebenezer Bishop, of Stamford, Conn., Nov. 1, 1738, "one right, Part, Share or Allotment in the Township of Kent, lately sold by ye government, which is in said colony of Connecticut, for which he paid £246 10s., and covenanted that he would, "by himself or his agent, within the space of one year and four months next after the date hereof, enter upon the said premises, build and finish an house thereon, not less than eighteen feet square and seven feet stud, and subdue, clear and fence six acres of said land, and continue thereon for the space of three successive years, commencing after the said one year and four months, unless prevented by death or inevitable providence." In Kent, May, 1733, he drew lot No. 21, and tradition says that he settled thereon about the first of November, 1739. Chosen constable of Kent, Dec. 4 1739; town meeting was held at his house Sept. 1, 1740; 1744, he was a lister, his own estate valued at £55 10s. Joined the ch. in Kent, July 12, 1741.

March 19, 1760, he deeded to his well-beloved son, Enoch Slosson, of Kent, ten acres. Margaret, d. Ap. 14, 1780. He d. March 8, 1787. They were buried in the old cemetery north of the house in which he lived.

His ear-mark, for cattle, recorded in Stockbridge, in March, 1768, "a half-penny in upper side of both ears"; and he was chosen constable in 1769.

The church book of Stockbridge has the following records: "At a meeting of the church, Aug. 17, 1786, on a complaint exhibited against Enoch Slosson, a member of the church, for charging Capt. Whittlesey with partiality, in giving his evidence under oath, and that he had sworn to that which he (Slosson) had never said or thought."

1793, they left Stockbridge, for Brown's Settlement, on the Boston Purchase, with a portion of their children, in company with their son Ezbon, and his family. They reached their destination on the fourth day of March, and began their settlement in a bark-covered shanty, on the bank of the creek, near where Sturtevant's grist-mill stands, in the village of Newark Valley, Tioga County, N. Y. This was the first house built on the site of the village.

On the 17th of November, 1803, more than ten years after they settled in the wilderness, the first ch. in Tioga was formed. 1820, Capt. Whittlesey, on his death-bed, acknowledged the wrong which he had done to Slosson; asking pardon of him and of the ch. She d. March 10, 1819. He d. Feb. 21, 1827.

Plymouth Probate rec. Book 45. Will Apr 20-1814 names sons "Amasa, Samuel W'm & dau. Irene Bates, Abigail Thomas, & Eliza.") (Lieut. Amasa Delano (uncle of Capt Amasa) officer in Rogers Rangers under Geo II against French & Indians 1757-9. Though very young was esteemed for bravery good conduct, and at twenty was a lieutenant. While with a party of rangers on an expedition near the Canadian lines; was led astray by the guides; & lost in the wilderness They were obliged to separate and to hunt for food. The party commanded by Amasa consisted of 18 privates and 1 officer besides himself Reduced to the greatest extremity; they were compelled to eat an "Indian child" whom they found in the woods. On coming to the Indian settlement and their unfortunate conduct regarding the child known were massacred in a horrible manner)—(Capt Amasa D'o—Asa a child (11) rescued his bro. Samuel fr. drowning)

He was remarkable for tenderness of feeling toward others The young hero caught the spirit of the times. He would not rest at home; though but twelve visited the camp at Roxbury, spent much time there in watching the movements of the little army.

In the summer of 1777 when his father was a prisoner of war on the "Rainbow" information came that Burgoyne had advanced from Montreal to Lake Champlain. Recruits were called for by the Provincial Congress, many marched to join the army under Genl Gates. But fourteen he was one of the first to come forward and enlist, though a man in stature, courage and enterprise. Went to Boston with others of his townsmen under command of Capt Joseph Wadsworth of Duxbury. He met his father returning from captivity at Halifax, who, to his great mortification insisted on his leaving the army and going home, being under age was obliged to submit. In latter part of 1777 an expedition was prepared to take Rhode Island, then in possession of the British. A large body of the militia was under Genl Spencer. About fifty were sent from Duxbury. He was permitted to join the company of militia on this expedition, under Lt Elisha Baker, who said: "Delano would have gone on to the island with the picket guard to reconnoitre the British lines every night if he had been allowed."

This campaign lasted a few months. Young Delano returned home in the autumn but his ardor for military life and adventures had not abated. The winter, it is believed, he passed in attending a private school, but in the following summer being fifteen, he served a few months in the militia under Genl Heath & belonged to the guard of the British army, captured at Saratoga, at Prospect Hill, Cambridge.

In the summer of 1779 with several other young men he went to Boston and entered on board of the privateer "Mars," sailed one cruise, which continued till the spring. Here it is said he suffered such hardship as to lose his health. After his return he remained until well again. 1781 he entered on board a merchantman the "Russel" belonging to Messrs R & J Leach of Salem Mass. He made a voyage to Cape Francois, West Indies. He returned fall of 1781 & winter of 1782 sailed from Boston to the West Indies in a schooner belonging to deacon Williams with other vessels under convoy of the "Flora and Caesar," private armed ships of the U. S. The weather was so boisterous they separated from the convoy, and were taken by the "Chatham," a British ship, 50 guns. The Schooner had a set of "English papers," on sight of which she was freed. This was not an uncommon practice in that day. On returning he continued at home and labored with his father ship building. "They built the Brig 'Peacock,' this year 1782 for E Parsons Esq of Boston, and in this vessel he afterwards sailed to Martinico and Porto Rico in the West Indies to Virginia, to Bilboa in Spain." He continued to sail in different vessels, his brothers Samuel Jr & William with him. Was in the Merchant Marine Service until 1798 cast away on Cape Cod Dec 28-1798, & loosing everything he retired and settled down married a widow and wrote his book of voyages. This book is not only unique but well and clearly written, all who can are advised to read it)

PREFACE.

In preparing this book for the public, I have had several objects in view. The principal one was the hope and belief that a large part of the information, which it contains, would be new and interesting to the community. In regard to the Oriental Islands particularly, remarks are made, anecdotes are told, customs are described, and principles and traits of character among the natives are brought to light, which, I trust, my readers will find worthy of their attention.

Having kept journals of my voyages and travels, which were made at the time minute and full upon whatever was extraordinary, and being satisfied that the publication of what I had seen and experienced would be useful, especially to seamen, I also desired to employ and amuse my mind in this work, and to spend, in a rational and profitable manner, a number of months which might otherwise have been left a prey to melancholy and painful meditations. I esteem it an occasion of peculiar gratitude to Providence when a man, depressed in his spirits, can fall upon a mode of beguiling his sadness which is equally reasonable and useful in regard to the community, and at the same time agreeable and reputable in regard to himself.

My friends too were solicitous that I should draw up this narrative, and give it to the press. It is hoped that their partiality will not be greatly mortified by the compliance with their advice, and the respect to their opinions, which I have here shown. No seaman from the United States has enjoyed the same opportunity for observation and discovery in the Eastern Ocean, which was afforded to me by the voyage I made with commodore McClure. My remarks upon the navigation along the coast of New Holland, Van Dieman's Land, New Zealand, and round Cape Horn, will also be new to my readers, and I am confident, of great real value. Although I have to regret that my book is not better, I trust that my countrymen will find it containing information and exhibiting a spirit, of which, notwithstanding its faults, they need not be ashamed. There are many suggestions made in it on the various subjects connected with ship building, with practical navigation, with the management of crews, with the conduct of seamen on shore and in port, and with the duties of owners and masters, which I am confident are deserving of the notice, recollection, and attention of persons employed in these departments of life. It was also thought expedient to introduce such information concerning the places which I visited, as might render the book interesting and instructive to landsmen, and as should give me an opportunity to offer my sentiments, as they occurred, upon various topics in morals, condition, and character.

In undertaking this work, I was aware of the difficulties which I should have to encounter, in consequence of my want of an early and academic education, although I have always seized every possible opportunity during my whole life for the improvement of my mind in the knowledge of useful literature and those sciences that are immediately connected with the pursuits to which I have been professionally devoted. My efforts have not been without success; and I have been often employed in giving instructions to midshipmen, other subordinate officers, and seamen, in mathematics, astronomy, and navigation.—These difficulties therefore were not greater in regard to me than they have been in regard to many other voyagers and travellers, who have very properly and usefully employed their pens in writing accounts of their observations and discoveries for the public. I wished this narrative to have my own character, sentiments, and manner, subject only to such a revision by some of my friends, before the manuscript went to press, as would free it from any gross errors in grammar, and peculiar obscurity in the construction of the sentences. I know that the book is unequally written, that the order is not always as happy as it might have been, that the facts and observations are miscellaneously presented to the reader, and that sometimes those belonging to the same subject are separated from each other at too great a distance. The nature of the narrative is such as to render it of necessity miscellaneous in a high degree, but the considerable defects in point of arrangement have arisen, not merely from my inexperience in the business of book-making, but from the fact that the press was set to work before my manuscript was revised, the sheets were printed as fast as they were prepared, and information sometimes came in, after its proper place was occupied with other matter. I do not attempt to justify this; I only desire to record my most sincere regret for the existence of those circumstances which have compelled me to carry my book through the press in this manner.

My manuscript was very nearly completed for the whole work before it was offered to any one for correction. It has undergone no alteration in respect to the facts, the general arrangement, the matter introduced, or the spirit and tenor of the sentiments and reflections. Although I am but little qualified to appear before the public in this way, yet the responsibility of every thing in the book, where credit is not given, is entirely my own. A number of my friends have been successively employed to revise the different parts of the manuscript, and in consequence of this, the style is in a degree varied according to the several hands. In the first part of my narrative, that which is included in the period when I was with McClure, the reflections are the most numerous, as I made them the most frequently myself in the narrative, and the thoughts were considerably filled out in the correction of the sheets for the press.

The names are spelled differently in different books. The orthography in this work is supported in every instance by some printed authority. The three plates I have procured in addition to the original design, without any addition to the terms and expense contemplated in the prospectus. The whole is written with a spirit of independence, without wounding the feelings, as I trust, of any good man. Perhaps my remarks may sometimes appear to pay too little deference to popular prejudice. I hope however, that what I have always felt may always appear in my expressions, and that is a uniform respect and attachment to all the good and generous qualities of our nature, and an unaffected veneration for the laws of Providence and the principles of true religion.

It may be considered by some of my readers that I have been at times too minute in giving details in this narrative concerning officers and crews, the manner in which they were treated, and the attention paid to their effects after their death. But notices of this kind are valuable to the cause of morality and humanity, and will help, I trust, to stimulate others to do the same things for their fellow men which are recommended here. What I have neglected myself, and what I have seen deficient in other commanders of vessels, have led me to make such remarks in the course of this work as I thought would be useful to the community, and particularly to those who are called upon, not only for acts of justice, but for those of disinterestedness, at sea.

It will be observed that the table of contents is made out very full in order to answer in some measure the purpose of an index.

VOYAGES AND TRAVELS

CHAPTER I.

The Ship Massachusetts—Shaw—Hayden—Hackett—Briggs—
The object of the Voyage of the Massachusetts—Her Crew—Passage to China—arrival at Batavia—at Canton—Occurrences there.

The voyage, with which I shall commence my narrative, was made in the ship Massachusetts. She was built at Quincy in one of the branches of Boston harbour, and was launched in September, 1789. An agreement was made at Canton in China, with major Samuel Shaw, a Bostonian, to build the Massachusetts for the firm of Shaw & Randall, both of whom had been officers in the American army during the revolution, and had travelled to India after the peace of 1783, when the army was disbanded. Of Randal I know but little. Shaw was aîd de camp to general Knox, who commanded the artillery during the whole war, and who often told me that Shaw enjoyed the full approbation and confidence of all his superior officers. He was a man of fine talents and considerable cultivation; he placed so high a value upon the sentiments of honour that some of his friends thought it was carried to excess, and said it would do him no good. He was candid, just, and generous, faithful in his friendships, an agreeable companion, and manly in all his intercourse. He died with a complaint of the liver, on a voyage from Canton to America, a succeeding voyage to that in which I was with him. He was buried in the ocean off the Cape of Good Hope.

The contractor with Major Shaw for the building of the ship was Eli Hayden of Braintree, a man of abilities in his profession, and who deserved more than he has received from the community. He built a small vessel, which was rigged as a brig, and went round the Cape of Good Hope to China in 1787-1788, an enterprise then considered as of very great importance. His fate has been like that of too many others. After making many exertions in an honest and useful pursuit, and gaining a competency by his industry, he found himself often circumvented and was obliged to return with loss into the country. He moved to Vermont, not well rewarded for his services and integrity.

The draughtsman of the ship was captain William Hackett of Amesbury on the Merrimack. He was also superintendant. He had formerly built the Alliance frigate, which sailed with such success during the war of the revolution. His knowledge and judgment in his business were of the first order, his temper amiable, and his character excellent. He was cousin to colonel John Hackett, who built the seventy four at Portsmouth, that was afterwards presented to the French government.

The name of the master builder of the Massachusetts was Daniel Briggs. He was one of the best men I ever knew to keep a large company of men at work, and to make their labour productive. The family of Briggs in Pembroke, Plymouth county, was celebrated for extraordinary merit. There were five brothers. Elisha continued in his native town an excellent ship builder, Alden was brought up a blacksmith, was remarkable for the talents he showed in the heavy work of a ship, was the mechanic employed for the Massachusetts in this department, and afterwards became a merchant. Enos is a ship builder at Salem, and built the Essex frigate. Daniel united mercantile speculations with ship building, and has lived many years in Milton. Thomas was educated a ship builder also, went to sea afterwards as captain, transacted business as a merchant in Boston for many years, and died in Dorchester in 1809, beloved and respected by all who knew him. The five brothers were employed upon the Massachusetts. It would not be proper for me to say here all that I know and feel in praise of this family.

(Account and documents relating to the assistance rendered Ship "Rodney," by Samuel Delano Jr fr. Delano's "Voyages" & the "Centinal." Wed Nov 20-1792. " On Friday last a very severe north-east storm commenced, and continued until Sunday morning, attended we fear with much loss to the mercantile interests. In this storm, the ship "Rodney" of Lon., Capt Whytock sailed from this port on Thursday, went on shore at Marshfield, entirely lost. She rode out the gale until seven o'clock Sunday morning, when striking the ledges with great force, her upper works separated from her hull, and went on ashore, with all the ships company, who were thus providentially saved, the captain's lady among them. Was loaded with lumber, and had a great number of cattle and horses upon deck which were lost. . . . The Rodney anchored in the storm off Marshfield near Branches point, to prevent being drove on shore; but the wind increased to such a violent gale that she dragged her anchor, and struck on Branches ledges.

The young men of Duxbury hastened to the relief of the sufferers, Mr Samuel Delano Jr was but a little before many others in giving assistance. Capt Gamaliel Bradford was the second man on board the Rodney from shore. "Tribute of Gratitude."

"George Whytock Commander of the Rodney fr. London of etc Nov. was shipwrecked on Duxbury beach etc takes this public method to return his most grateful thanks to the benevolent people of Duxbury, Marshfield and vicinities, for their humane, spirited and generous exertions in affording him and his ship's crew assistance. To all this is sincerely proffered, and particularly to Captain Samuel Delano Jr of Duxbury for his singularly benevolent, noble and spirited exertion, who at the risk of his own life ventured into the boisterous waves (and providentially reached the wreck) for the kind purpose of preventing the sufferers attempting to land in their then situation, but to wait until the tide would admit of their getting safely on shore, and to infuse into their almost exhausted spirits every possible degree of fortitude, with an assurance as soon as it was possible for help to reach them from the beach

Signed

George Whytock

Cambridge, Dec., Monday

Sir.

I intended yesterday to have mentioned to you an affair, which I think deserves the notice of the Humane Society.

You will judge, however, whether it will be proper to lay it before them You saw the account in the paper, of Whytock's misfortune—Samuel Delano Jr of Duxbury, exposed himself to save the people on the wreck. They would undoubtedly have perished, had he not reached the wreck, and given them some information respecting the situation, and state of the tide His life was very much endangered

Many people on the beach supposed he never would reach the wreck.

Yours

A Bradford

Mr Samuel Delano Jr

Sir The Trustees of the Humane Society of the Commonwealth of Mass having been informed of your very signal and humane exertion in committing yourself to a rough and bostrous sea, in a most inclement season, to save the lives of the officers and crew of the ship Rodney, Capt Whytock stranded on Duxbury shore on the 25th of Nov last have ordered a Gold Medal to be struck, emblematic of the circumstances of your benevolent and very hazardous exertions and request your acceptance of the same, as a small testimony of the high sense they entertain of your merit and of the great humanity and benevolence exhibited by you on this occasion In obedience to their orders I have now the honor of transmitting you this medal together with the wishes of the Trustees that you may always enjoy the sublime pleasure arising from the consciousness of having done so much good to your fellow creatures I am, sir, in the name and behali of the Trustees of the Humane Society of Mass your most obedient and very humble servant.

S Parker, Cores. Secretary

Sir

Bos Jan 5-1793

I have the honor to receive your much esteemed favour of the 4th of January, accompanied by a most liberal compliment (through your hands) a Gold Medal, emblematical of the shipwreck of the ship Rodney The attempt I made on said morning (providentially succeeding) to aid and assist the distressed officers, &c, with the crew of the Rodney, was most amply compensated by the generous tribute of Capt Whytock and the ship's co.; but if any action of my life has merited the generous and esteemed tribute presented me from the Hon Humane Soc, I consider myself under every principal of gratitude to return them my most grateful thanks for the honorable testimony of respect, and shall ever esteem it my greatest happiness freely to acknowledge their generous and benevolent compliment With every sentiment of respect, I remain your most obedient and very humble Servant

Samuel Delano Jr.

Dear Sir

George Whytock, commander of the ship Rodney of London, stranded on Duxbury beach, on the 25th November 1792 begs leave to return his grateful thanks to the honorable Humane Society for their generous and benevolent notice of the gentleman who stepped forward in the midst of danger, to aid and assist him, his family and ship's company when they were in a most perilous and distressed situation by shipwreck.

With sentiments of the sincerest respect I am your most obedient and very humble servant

George Whytock

His trade of shipwright he learned of Augustus Sampson, who is still living at the age of eighty-six. He worked for many years in Medford as foreman and master builder, constructing some of the finest ships. Afterwards for nearly forty years he carried on the business of repairing vessels at the North End, his place of business for all that period being at the head of Lincoln's Wharf, Boston. Mr. Delano was well known and always had a kind word for all. He was an affable gentleman.

Prof. Edward Chandler-Delano.

(Article prepared by Prof. Lewis H. Clark, Historian.)

He is the only child of Rufus Chandler Delano (one of the best known and most respected citizens of the county), and Almeda Matilda Taylor, a direct des. in the 8th generation, of John Taylor who came from England with Governor Winthrop in 1630, and settled at Windsor, Conn. in 1639. His grandfather, William Delano, removed from Madison, Me., in 1812, to the then almost unbroken wilderness of Western New York, and settled in the town of Sodus, was one of the sturdy pioneers of that prosperous region.

Acquiring knowledge quickly, and devoting himself with diligence to a course of study, the subject of our sketch early secured a thorough, practical preparation for his chosen life work, in the field of education.

He began teaching in 1874, and was for several years employed as principal of the public sch. of Sodus C. Under his management it was carefully graded, and became noted for the thoroughness of its work.

In 1881 Mr. Delano was elected School Commissioner of Wayne Co. with 118 schools under his care. This he held for six years, leaving upon the schools the distinct impress of his executive force and ability. Incompetent teachers were weeded out, schoolhouses repaired, new buildings erected, grounds graded, and trees planted, to a greater or less extent in all the towns, a work more decisive and far reaching in its beneficial effects than has been done by other school commissioners there before or since.

These services attracted attention beyond the limits of the county. He was an active member of several educational bodies, and had much to do in formulating and shaping the trend of cultivated thought in the Empire State. In 1885 he was unanimously elected President of the New York State Association of School Commissioners and City Superintendents, a position that he filled with ability.

He was active in urging the necessity of a state system of uniform examinations, and led in the successful movement to secure the pledges of school officers throughout the state, to voluntarily accept such a system, although the first legislative enactment establishing it had been vetoed by the Governor.

As a result the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Andrew Sloan Draper, (Pres. of Ill. State Un.) in 1888, invited Mr. Delano to become the head of the newly created Bureau of Examinations, in the State Department of Public Instruction, at Albany. As first incumbent of that responsible position, he established and popularized the work, not only by his practical knowledge of the subject, and skill in organizing; but with his pleasant, intelligent, affable manner in meeting and disarming adverse criticism in all parts of the state.

At the change of political administration, in 1893, he delivered to his successor an office which he had largely created and wisely developed, and which through succeeding years continues to give evidence of his clear foresight and thorough ability.

Well informed, promoting literary and moral culture around him, having a large circle of acquaintances among the educators of the state, an acute and intelligent observer of public affairs, he enjoys the respect and confidence of all.

In "Ship building on North River Mass." by L Vernon Briggs, 1889 Bos mention made of Delanos who built the Wanton yard, located on what was called the Molly Stetson Place, soon after 1770

Benj. D'o Jr first from Pembroke 1770 settled on the ancient Richard Dwelley place, north side of the brook later at Tills Creek. His house on east side of road, has since been occupied by Maj. Samuel Foster. D'o sisters own place. The earliest record preserved of Delano vessels is 1790. The Sch; "Rover," 79 tons, of Duxbury; owner: Sylvanus Delano, of do. Benj. Delano built here, in 1804, the Sch, "Charles" 123 tons of Dux. This is the last on record of which he was master carpenter. William Delano his son b. built many very large vessels. Prior to the time he built, the Wanton yard had been divided in two; The Delano's in one, and Fosters soon began in the other. After serving his time and building one vessel in Hanover 1799 William came to this yard and built that year the ship "Indus," 338 tons of Bos. In 1800 the Sch. "Hannah," 118 tons of Bos. and the Ship "Harlequin," 336 tons of Bos. 1801 the Ship "Alexander Hodgden," 377 tons of Bos. 1802 the ship Columbine, 270 tons of Bos. 1805 the ship Topaz, 385 tons. He was master-carpenter 1806 of ship "Ganges" 215 tons, owned by David Sears of Bos. the same year he built Ship "Augustus" 325 tons, 1809 Ship "Ida," 363 tons both of Bos. The next built was one of the two famous vessels spoken of by Deane as being the largest ever built on North River, but failed to give their names, first was built 1810 by W'm D'o and second was finished 1815 by his fam. first was the "Lady Madison" 450 tons of New York, she was 112 feet long, 30 broad, & 15 deep, owned by Thomas Hazzard Jr of New Bedford & Jacob Barker of N. Y. He may have begun the "Mt Vernon," finished 1815 by Samuel Hartt a relative of his wife. William built a large ship in Hanover and prob. at this yard the "Lady Gallatin" 358 tons of Hanover; 1811. He was master carpenter, Miller & Smith, master. It took a great deal of liquor, in those days, to build a vessel, which was charged to the vessels as was the material used in building.

The following are copies of two charges from an old account book. To 78 gallons West India Rum drunk in the summer of 1811, while at work on vessel—$104. In 1813, To 80 gallons Gin and Rum from March 22d to Aug 25th at 9 shillings, $120, later, liquor was discontinued in the yards.

W'm Hartt Delano & Benj. Franklin Delano worked in the ship yard in company from the time they were old enough until the former removed to east Boston. W'm H. was often called "Lord North." Benjamin F was educated under the Rev Samuel Deane, and displaying quite a talent for ship building, was placed in the draughting office of the Brooklyn Navy Yard where he served his time

He returned to South Scituate Mass. and in company with his eldest bro. and Joseph Clapp built 1829, the Sch "Only Daughter," 70 tons of Hingham 1833 Stephen White and others bought Grand Island on Niagara River N. Y. and engaged Benj F D'o to convert the forest of oak timber that was there into vessels. He took with him his two bros. William H & Edward H, and twenty picked men from his native town.

The venture proved a success, and they built seven vessels. He also built the first steam vessel that plied between East Boston & Boston. 1847 he received an appointment as Naval Constructor, and was stationed at Portsmouth N H. and from there was transferred, 1850 to the Brooklyn Navy Yard where he was Chief Naval Constructor, retired June 11-1873.

At Portsmouth he constructed the "Saranac." He constructed twenty-one war vessels from 1861-65, among them the daring dispatch boat "Iroquois," the "Onecida," "Nyack," "Wampanoag," and "Mattawaska." He also converted numbers of harmless merchantmen, bought by the government, into death-dealing war vessels, and worked day and night over his plans for their reconstruction.

The life of Edward Hartt Delano was not unlike that of his bro. Benj. He served in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was with his brother later, and 1848 was commissioned Naval Constructor, and ordered to Pensacola Fla. and afterwards transferred to Norfolk Va. & Charlestown Mass. He built the U. S. steam frigate "Merrimac," and Admiral Farragut's famous flag-ship, the "Hartford," d Charlestown while in charge at that station. See reproduction of the "Hartford" fr. "Harpers Weekly" 1865—to whose rigging Farragut was lashed—at Mobile, etc)
